

1972 & The Club of Rome; the Beginning of the Climate Change Agenda

Climate Change: Conspiracy, Alarmism, or Science?

Or maybe a bit of all three? Let us look at the evidence.

Some fifty years ago now, in 1972 a number of compulsive do-gooders of the financial / intellectual elite met in a gathering of their self styled “The Club of Rome.”

This was an annual event, a pre-cursor to today’s Davos Switzerland meetings of the world’s elite. One of their leaders, the Italian billionaire Aurelio Peccei, co-authored a book titled “The limits of growth.” The pretext of this volume was that we had better change humanity’s course on population growth or face famine, world war, and possible human extinction.

The source of this study came from a series of computer models created by professors at MIT.

These Club of Rome elite demanded the formation of a world government as the only way that massive population reduction could be carried out. Nothing much has changed in 50 years.

My recollection is that this book was a world-wide sensation. The records I have found say it sold over twelve million copies! I also remember that the soon coming predicted global food shortage was delayed by the "Green revolution." The genetic manipulation of wheat crops increased their yield several fold.

However, with the world population now over seven billion, even the effectiveness of that miracle seems to be coming to an end. What with today's war in one of the primary wheat belts of the World, an imminent famine is likely very soon.

Many of us in the conservative community today see this 1972 seminal volume as the precursor to this "Climate Change" hysteria evident today. The serious population reduction goals set half a century ago are even more loudly repeated today.

The eugenics elite such as Bill Gates have stated their desire to implement this massive de-population goal by any means, to thunderous applause at Davos.

Many of us have noted the deliberate viral gain of function research creating bio-weapons, carried out at research centers across the globe.

Many of us believe the recent pandemics were deliberate attempts at massive global population reduction of those who the elite consider "useless eaters." The global elite's definition of "useless eaters" are the elderly and those who contribute nothing to society. This is the perverse "science" of eugenics.

Remember the recently demolished "Georgia Guide-stones? On them was written in several languages the mantra to reduce the global population down well below one billion by 2030.

This "Climate Change" hysteria deliberately begun by the world elite some 50 years ago is coming full circle. The four horsemen of the apocalypse; book of Revelation, are about to ride fourth. Lewis Brackett 7/16/23
