

America Is In Utter Jeopardy

President Trump recently signed the largest six month spending bill in United States history. Illegal border crossers are having a field day crossing our southern border like they did during the Obama presidency. Border officials are back to catching and releasing those who shuffle into our republic illegally. Leftist democrats like Nancy Pelosi and Chuckie Schumer are still celebrating the massive funding of sanctuary cities. Obviously neither Chuckie or Nancy have any regard for American born sovereigns and legal immigrants who are often raped, robbed, or beaten to death by illegal border crossers who moonlight as dastardly MS 13 gang members.

History has proven ever since the barbarians sacked Rome, that enemies will infiltrate any nation foolish enough to not secure their borders. Once ancient Rome lost her way and the emperors no longer revered that society, border security was no longer a high priority. American government officials today, like their Roman counterpoints of long ago have abandoned their sworn duty defend and protect the United States of America. President Trump and a few others are rare exceptions among the many D.C. dwellers who prefer to put America last. Some senatorial leaders Mitch McConnell and former Vice President Joe Biden are beholden to foreign powers like China who pay them off through their offspring.

The vicious hatred of President Donald J. Trump by people ranging from republican party statisticians like Paul Ryan or the retiring Jeff Flake and democrats like Chuckie Schumer is not because Mr. Trump is the most horrible person to set foot in the Oval Office. The hatred of Trump stems from his mission to reverse the curse of putting the interests of foreign nations and illegal border crossers over the interests of you and I, Americans born and raised. The simple yet powerful mission to make America great again immediately became a dividing line between those of us who love this republic and appreciate her many good attributes and the others who wish for her demise.

As horrific as the situation is politically with the swamp dwelling statistes who are seeking to kill, steal and destroy our unalienable rights, especially the right to bear arms and protect ourselves, family and property. That struggle pales in comparison to the awful drumbeat of government school indoctrination that has literally caused the creation of legions of young Americans who are literally seeking to destroy the republic from within.

Such utter madness has been utilized in other nations like Germany, where Hitler had his brown shirts and in China where young people went head over heels for Mao. In both instances, their nations paid a heavy price for indoctrinating the young into accepting evil. As great as the United States is and has been, she is potentially now in greater danger of collapse than at any time since the Civil War. Not because a foreign power can just wipe us out, because they cannot. But rather because of the multi decade unrelenting dumbing down and at the same time indoctrination of American students into believing lies concerning everything from the right of self-protection, border security and American history in general.

The big jeopardy that America faces is a series of self inflicted wounds that have been strategically foisted upon our beloved land of liberty. Number one is government school indoctrination instead of real education of young Americans. If the education process is not soon decentralized and returned to more local and state control, American students will possibly be permanently locked in last place educationally, rendering them unable to intellectually compete with their counterparts from around the world. A close second is that our civilization has been on a slippery slope away from the awesome values, principles and fundamental beliefs that provided the foundation to build America the beautiful into the envy of the world. Our republic is in utter Jeopardy.

But coming together and reversing these and other wrongful trends, will not only stem the tide of destruction that has been gradually heaped upon our nation, then seeking to be one nation under God will go a long way toward authentic restoration of the United States of America. If not, she will be relegated to being one nation gone under. America is too great to die and with God's grace AND Providential guidance, she won't. But the choice is up to you my fellow Americans. Please choose wisely. God bless you, God Bless America and may America Bless God.
