

Culture of multiculturalism and diversity: doomed to fail

Starting with Teddy Kennedy in 1965, the often drunken U.S. Senator started the United States down a path toward multiculturalism and diversity. Kennedy changed the sociological, religious, racial, linguistic and ethos of this country.

He forced America out of herself into a multicultural Frankenstein. Today, 100 million immigrants later, America fractures and fragments with everyone pulling in different directions.

Mexicans want it their way. Muslims demand it their way. Africans want a separate state. Caucasian-Americans hang on for dear life as they flee big cities.

In this series of interviews with George Phelps, you receive a bird's eye view of our doomed society.

"A multicultural society is doomed to fail," said Phelps. "Unless there is one common ingredient—language, and even then it's a struggle for it to succeed. Throughout the ages powerful societies have crumbled into chaos, anarchy and oblivion. There are many reasons for this, but the most common denominator is multiple languages between the many cultures and the many conflicts between cultures. When multiple cultures enter a country they separate and segregate into groups; and continue to practice the cultures they brought with them. They are 'steeped' in their old cultures and do not embrace the culture of 'their new country'. This automatically sets up 'segregation' and conflict with neighboring cultures [the other cultures that have also segregated themselves]. This segregation in the legal sense is called 'de facto'— not by law. It's by choice.

"I don't know when it started, exactly, but there has been a faction that has developed a philosophy that multiculturalism is the answer to peace, prosperity, and understanding among people of a country, or the world. Their belief is that all cultures are equal, and should be acknowledged as such, regardless of their habits of barbarism, hate and destruction. There is no recognition that any one culture may be more advanced than another, but that all societies and associated cultures are equal.

"This philosophy has crept into every facet of our society—government, education, religion, business leadership, and is resident among many of the wealthy elite, although it is contrary to their own social situation.

"This philosophy, this idealistic thinking, has evolved over many decades, to the point where it is now so infused in our society that we will find it almost impossible to overcome. The result will be the end to our society and culture, as we know it.

"People migrating to another part of the world, such as the United States, do not give up their cultural beliefs and way of life. All they do is transfer it to their new surroundings, ignoring and defying the culture of their new country. This results in the corruption of the culture of the land to which they have immigrated.

"The strange part of this is that they have left their countries of origin seeking a better life, peace, prosperity, freedom and security. The country to which they have immigrated is supposed to have supplied them with all of this, but having transferred their cultural beliefs and ways of life to their newly chosen country, they ignore the new countries' culture and end up turning it into the society from which they have 'escaped,' when they should be embracing the culture of the new society which has all the ingredients they are seeking.

"This erroneous concept that this multicultural society can survive with all these competing and greatly different ideologies and cultural differences, including the language barriers, is impossible to understand. The result is the decay and downfall of the country they escaped to.

"Right now in America there are multitudes of different cultural communities many of which/most of which are at odds, or even at war with one another.

"If that continues the United States will become a third world country with all the horrible internal conflicts of the nations from which the immigrants have 'escaped'.

"It's happening and there doesn't appear to be any way of stopping it unless patriotic Americans force the American government to control it.

Washington D.C. is the capitol of Benedict Arnold's of our time.

"Immigration and migration, which I consider one and the same, have been going on for centuries, clear back to the time when Homo sapiens stood erect and left Africa, considered the birthplace of the human race. This was the first movement called migration. I think that today we are faced with invasion; invasion of the multi-cultures from around the world. They are all in conflict with American culture. This conflict may end up in revolution.

"In those days humans were at conflict with one another as they are to this day. Different political and religious beliefs have kept humans at war over the ages. The greatest of empires have fallen as immigrants from other parts of the world arrived with their different cultural habits and beliefs that they brought with them. Although seeking a better life, they could not shed the old beliefs and languages. When communications break down, conflict follows.

"In America there are many cultures that have arrived here seeking better lives, yet their ingrained cultural beliefs have spawned conflicts of a major nature. The cities of America are wrought with 'wars' between different cultures and ethnic groups. We have gangs roaming the streets of our cities killing, raping, stealing and doing everything but working for a living. Radical Muslims attacked us on September 11, 2001 and yet we refuse to acknowledge the fact that we are at war with Islam. We even invite Muslims into our country 'without prejudice.'

"No folks, 'multiculturalism' doesn't work even if there was no language barrier. The Muslim countries in the mid-east are murdering one another even though they are of the same race and religious beliefs. However, they really have no common religious beliefs as shown by the Sunni and Shiite sects that claim they belong to the Muslim religion.

"No, no, no, Multiculturalism does not work. It is destroying our country and I see no hope for change.

"'Diversity' is being promoted ('jammed down our throats') by the liberal, so called progressive, individuals and groups who have grabbed power and are seriously promoting their beliefs or philosophies regardless of anyone else's beliefs and philosophy of life. They scream diversity and yet what they mean is 'you' must believe our way because 'it is the right way!' That's exactly the opposite of what they 'preach' to others. This is destroying our country if we continue to let it happen.

"The following is a definition of diversity as written by one of our universities. Whoever wrote this is only interested in imposing his or her ideology on the rest of us. Believe me it has nothing to do with Common Sense or reality."

Definition of Diversity

The concept of diversity encompasses acceptance and respect.

It means understanding that each individual is unique, and recognizing our individual differences. These can be along the dimensions of race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, socio-economic status, age, physical abilities, religious beliefs, political beliefs, or other ideologies. It is the exploration of these differences in a safe, positive, and nurturing environment. It is about understanding each other and moving beyond simple tolerance to embracing and celebrating the rich dimensions of diversity contained within each individual.

“This sounds good but it’s philosophical not practical in the sense of the ‘real world’ that we live in. Look around at what’s going on in our world today. War, hate and conflict, religious and political. Does anyone think the Muslims would embrace this philosophy? Politics and religion seem to be the ‘root of all evil.’”

Finally, we face an added 100 million legal immigrants from 190 different countries in the next 30 years. One look at Europe gives you a sobering view of our future. Do you think your children stand a chance at a decent life as Americans? Answer: not a snowball’s chance in hell!
