

D.E.I. and Affirmative Action Biggest Cons In America

It started in the 1970's with "Affirmative Action;" it continues in the 21st century with "Diversity, Equity, Inclusion." It allowed unqualified American citizens of color or gender to gain jobs over qualified Americans who educated themselves, worked hard and proved their worth.

Those two entities proved to be the biggest cons in American history as to trying to offer equal opportunity. It started in the 1970's with dumbing down America's educational system. I know because I taught school during that decade and into the 1990's.

It's as though our leaders deliberately planted the seeds of illiteracy into the educational systems of America. "Let's degrade our standards in reading, writing, math and science to such low levels that anyone can pass tests, and if they can't, then pass them anyway," said one teacher.

As an educator, I can vouch for the fact, that if you don't learn the basics of your grade level, it leaves a hole in your learning curve. Once you cannot read or write at your grade level, you build your educational foundation on a house of cards. I saw it firsthand in the 1980's when Detroit, Michigan's dropout/flunk-out rate reached 88 percent as reported by anchor Brian Williams. It led to violence, horrible bullies, lying, cheating, stealing and academic fraud. It destroyed Detroit. That situation spread across the land.

Today, "In the United States, approximately 21% of adults have low literacy skills, translating to about 43.0 million people. This includes 26.5 million adults at level 1 and 8.4 million below level 1. Additionally, 8.2 million adults were unable to participate in literacy assessments due to language barriers or other reasons, further contributing to the overall issue. Roughly 54% of American adults, or 130 million people, lack proficiency in literacy, essentially reading below the equivalent of a sixth-grade level."

If there is one marker for a successful society; it's education. If you suffer an illiterate society, you face a failing society. Because, once a huge collective of society lacks basic education, everything begins to fall apart as to ethics, integrity, self-worth, critical thinking, job skills, shoplifting, and lack of personal accountability.

In his book, DEI Exposed, Stanley Ridgly said, "The DEI Con has enriched thousands of hustlers nationwide. It has embedded many hundreds of apparatchiks and supernumeraries in college bureaucracies, and it will require herculean efforts to root them all out..." "Diversity" had already been around for many years, its hustler scratching at the university door. Not actual diversity, mind you, but the skin-deep diversity of noxious racialism tarted-up with fake Enlightenment discourse. This concept of "diversity, equity, inclusion" quickly metastasized until it was everywhere, and this was no accident."

It was no accident that it was violence and the threat of violence that opened the door for this effervescence of DEI.

Ridgly continued, "This was the madness of crowds brought en masse onto the campuses, and it was wildly successful. It was one thing to the public, and it was another altogether when enacted on the campuses... It was the classic Potemkin village offering, with a façade masking a brute, racist substance.”

“Already, “inclusive excellence” is supplanting DEI as this trusty acronym becomes freighted with failure. Con stories are essential to convincing gullible people to act in ways that simply make no sense to a normal person who is tethered to reality.”

On top of devolving our educational systems, we’ve got NGO’s sucking off the American taxpayer as exposed by DOGE and Elon Musk into the trillions of dollars, your tax dollars. We’ve got 400,000 anchor babies annually leeching off the American taxpayer’s wallet.

According to a new report from John Binder at Breitbart, there were roughly 400,000 anchor babies born in the U.S. in 2024 alone.

“An average of 400,000 anchor babies per year means around 1,100 anchor babies per day; this means more than 11 percent of births taking place on U.S. soil are individuals who are not legitimate citizens and have no right to be here.”

That means, according to writer Olivia Murray, “400,000 anchor babies means... probably 400,000 illegal alien mothers are now fast-tracked to their own citizenship, and we can assume a majority of these anchor babies also anchor an illegal alien father as well. For a very rough estimate, that means 800,000 illegals now have a “legitimate” reason to remain in the U.S., and if each woman were giving birth to one child, that’s 1.2 million people each year being grafted into American society through unscrupulous and unfair means.”

With the median cost of childbirth and postnatal care amounting to around $17,000, that’s $6.8 billion a year.

Murray finished, “That being said, there is no obligation, moral or otherwise, to continue with anchor baby policies—the parents must go home, and take their children with them. I refuse to give in to the gaslighting that somehow the plight of these foreign children is my burden and it's on me to cede ground to lawlessness."

In other words, the American taxpayer has been taken for a ride, not only stealing from his/her wallets, but additionally, severe destruction of America's educational foundation. Again, you cannot teach our kids with 50 different languages in that classroom. It's not our job as Americans to save the world.

Thankfully, President Trump has written an executive order to stop "birthright citizenship." It shouldn't be contested because it was meant for the progeny of freed slaves back in 1865. It does not apply to people breaking into our country, dropping their baby, and instantly be given citizenship, food, housing, school, medical care...essentially a free ride on your tax dollars. It's been going on for five decades. May the Supreme Court justices bring the stupidity and insanity of "anchor babies" to an end.

It's as stupid as our own House Members and U.S. Senators trying to stop deportations of rapists, killers, perverts and sex traffickers who have violated our borders. You cannot help but wonder what kind "moronic minds" fill the seats in Congress? Let it be known that U.S. Senator Van Hollen (D-MD) should be impeached for being an intellectual idiot, un-American, and stupid to the point of absurdity.

We desperately need a renewal of educational standards in America. You attend school. You pay attention. You study. You pass your tests. You become an educated 18-year-old. You go to college or technical school or job training programs. You become a contributing member of American society. You make yourself useful, viable, educated and fully responsible for your life.

That's what the American Dream is all about!
