

Deport the Liars in the Foreign Media

I sometimes turn to sports coverage for relief from the Trump Derangement Syndrome that characterizes most of the U.S. “mainstream media” and the foreign media’s coverage of American politics. But Thursday night’s college football game, in which Miami beat Ole Miss 31-27 in the Fiesta Bowl, reminded me of the bias that exists there, too.

I hesitate to say the game was rigged or fixed, but something seriously wrong occurred, and everybody knows it.

Commentators ignored an obvious need for a pass-interference call on the final Hail-Mary play of the game that would have given Ole Miss a first down, possibly leading to a winning score. The commentators and the refs gave the win to Miami when the game was stolen.

Think about the coverage of this important game, and the fact that most people recognized the ending was tainted by the no-call and that Miami’s win was a fraud. The viewers saw it.

Something similar has happened with the death of the “queer” anti-ICE activist who rammed an ICE agent with her car and got shot and killed in the process. Everybody can see what happened. She refused to get out of the car and tried to drive it into the officer, who shot in self-defense as he tried to move out of the way. She was given orders to stop and get out of the car and ignored them. She stopped only when shot at.

We expect the major media to lie about it and blame ICE. This is what they do. They lie for a living, finding every angle of any incident to blame law enforcement or Trump. Among the worst offenders are foreign media like the British Guardian and the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation (CBC). These are instruments of foreign powers and have no legal claim to operate from U.S. soil without “foreign agent” designations.

The Guardian accuses the White House of “untruths,” while the CBC says the facts about Minneapolis “differ” from what ICE says. They are like the college football refs who failed to see what actually happened.

I say “Deport the Foreign Media.” We are sick and tired enough of the broadcasting networks and the major papers here. We shouldn’t have to entertain lying foreign media on American soil.

Tell them to get out and never return. Revoke their press credentials. They are professional liars. Why don’t they focus their ire on the governments of Europe and Canada?

In the college game, at the end, one can clearly see a Miami player hanging on the Ole Miss player, to prevent him from catching the pass. This is pass interference. The commenter defended the no-call, saying the ball couldn’t be caught, when the Ole Miss player got a hand on it and had a chance of bringing it in. The defenders “were doing their jobs,” said the commentator, when they were interfering with the catch.

The public saw the truth, as reflected in the after-game coverage and outrage over the ending. Ole Miss was robbed. Everybody saw it, even if some won’t admit it.

By the same token, the ICE officer who defended himself against the terrorist act of the queer anti-ICE activist had the right to defend himself. He has been identified as a military veteran who joined ICE to defend his country from foreign invaders. He is a true patriot who deserves our thanks.

The queer woman, by contrast, deserves our sympathy but should not have been there in the first place, certainly not with a car that is increasingly being used as a terrorist weapon. Those who instigated this violence are those behind the anti-ICE protests.

In the game, some believe the refs refrained from calling pass interference because they were intimidated by Miami head coach Mario Cristobal, an angry man who was yelling and making faces at the refs on a regular basis throughout the game, to generate more sympathetic calls for his team

The domestic and foreign media in the U.S. use tactics like coach Mario Cristobal. They scream for a reason. In the case of the “protests” in Minneapolis, they spout lies and nonsense to make ICE look bad and force them to back off. But President Trump is backing them. And they are committed law enforcement officers.

The difference is that the football game is over and the communist-inspired war on ICE is heating up.

If you doubt these are communists, look at what the Democratic Socialists of America (DSA) is saying about the U.S. military’s apprehension of Cuban puppet Nicolas Maduro from Venezuela. (This is the group backing NYC Mayor Zohran Mamdani, who calls ICE murderers.)

The headline from the DSA newsletter is: “No Blood for Oil: United States attacks Venezuela – socialists stand against imperialist war machine.” These “socialists” are in reality Communists, in the same way Maduro is a socialist backed by the Communist Party of Venezuela. They are one and the same. They are enemies of the United States who want to kill our people.

The blood is the result of the drugs being poured into the USA by foreign communist regimes like Maduro's. President Trump is finally standing up to it. ICE is grabbing the foreign invaders milking America's socialist welfare system and killing our people, and that infuriates the communists.

Those who saw the video of the incident in Minneapolis understand the anti-ICE "protesters" were there to get somebody killed. They want confrontations. They are responsible for the death of that queer woman. They used her for their own purposes.

That is just as certain as pass interference on the final play of the college football game.
