

Former Hillary Clinton's classmate helped in her defeat

Portrait of a True Trump Trooper

“Bias has always been a factor in journalism. It’s nearly impossible to remove. Humans have their thoughts, and keeping them out of your work is difficult. But 2016 saw the remaining veneer of credibility, thin as it was, stripped away and set on fire.” –Derek Hunter, Former ‘NeverTrumper’ Talk Show Host

While there are enormous numbers of supporters and campaign workers who fought and won for President-Elect Donald J. Trump, the mainstream news media appear to feature only those Trump supporters who are still part of the Republican establishment, and denizens of the D.C. “Beltway Crowd.”

However, there were many who volunteered their time, experience and talents to furthering the goal of getting a true outsider into the Oval Office, especially a man who never held political office. Donald Trump brought out the best in numerous people who didn’t work for the rewards or accolades which usually come with a newspaper or magazine byline, an appearance on a television or radio news/talk show, or a series of lectures on college campuses.

One such person is conservative research columnist and commentator Kelleigh Nelson. This is a gal who probably should be doing research directly for Mr. Trump.

Kelleigh wrote a number of stirring and informative columns with the sole purpose of neutralizing the news media’s bombastic and dishonest portrayal of Donald Trump, a man who dared to take on the progressives in politics and in newsrooms. With titles such as The Best Man To Lead This Republic, Donald J. Trump ; Donald J. Trump: Fearless Courage for God, for Family and for Country ; Hillary the Politician v. Trump the President; and many others, most of them appearing in Walter Publishing Company's Internet daily magazine, News With Views (www.newswithviews.com).

Mr. Trump actually used two of Kelleigh's articles in his rallies, and one of them exposed Jeb Bush's use of eminent domain for the EPA which took 160 acres from a disabled US Navy SEAL. See the video below where Mr. Trump shows Kelleigh's article at his South Carolina rally. Not long after that, Bush dropped out of the campaign.

Ever wonder why the media is allowed to lie with impunity about public figures? Kelleigh told us why, after Mr. Trump questioned how they could continually get away with the deceit. In her article, Supreme Court Ruled that Media Can Lie with Impunity, she explained the 1964 supreme court case, NYTs v. Sullivan, and the liberal Warren Court decision. When Mr. Trump held a huge rally in Alabama, he told about this case which originated in that state with police commissioner Sullivan.

Formerly manager of advertising and communications with a Fortune 100 company, Kelleigh's interest in public policy was peaked when she was in high school.

She was a Goldwater girl in high school with Hillary Rodham. Nelson remembers watching Hillary while she was on the high school debating team. "I watched Hillary debate in high school and use tactics that were less than honorable... watching her lie through her teeth during the presidential debates, was enough to make me wretch," said Kelleigh.

Kelleigh Nelson has indeed gained a wealth of knowledge through her endeavors as a Playboy Bunny in Chicago while she was in college, acting as the executive producer for two national talk radio hosts, working with her fellow-conservatives including the iconic Phyllis Schlafly, and now running her own business for the last 25 years.

“I wrote political and gossip columns for local businesses on the north side of Chicago back in the late 60s while working in downtown, and I was there for the 1968 Democratic riots,” she noted.

She has been with NewsWithViews.com since 2009, and writing exclusively about Donald Trump’s campaign, his goals and policies since he announced his candidacy. She also worked to vociferously expose his political challengers in the primary.

Kelleigh now spends her efforts researching the key candidates being proposed for President Trump’s cabinet and administration. In her recent article she expressed concern that globalists and Kingmakers might slip into key appointments and set policies which don’t adhere to Trump’s vision for Making America Great Again.

Her editor at NewsWithViews.com has this to say about Kelleigh Nelson:

“Kelleigh is one of the best research columnists in the business. She writes from the heart but doesn’t shut off her mind. She can find out anything on anybody. This election cycle saw her feverishly working to get a man she believed was destined to start making a U-Turn for the United States. Her columns garnered some of the highest numbers of readers and she still believes she’s seeing history made with the election of Trump as President of the United States.”
