Life Has A Way of Keeping Things In Focus...

Just when you think you've seen/heard it all, things happen that set your head back straight.

As we age, we get to thinking we've seen it all, maybe even know it all. 100%, We have not. God keeps showing us that we don't even get close to that level of awareness, like some get to believing. Last night, President Trump's speech to Congress made that clear. The Left thought they knew enough to scoff. They looked really bad.

Donald Trump was masterful. I would say that even if he were NOT my choice for President. Had Obama or Biden been this smooth, kind and smart, I would have worried that they really did hold the upper hand. As it turns out, they did not, thank God.

Donald Trump kept his cool and good humor when most of us would not have managed that, despite the all out war waged against him for the last decade, by those he faced from the podium. Yes, it has been a decade since he descended that famous escalator and they began to fire on him, but Trump has only gained in strength and valor. A little divine intervention has seen to that.

The Democrats display was puerile and disgusting, at a minimum. If they had morals, they would be embarrassed, but they don't, so they won't. This is a large part of why people are abandoning the party label, as they watch their political leaders act like fools. Having no spiritual leader but for Lucifer, they are spared that emotion of shame, so tend to replace that unfamiliar chagrin with rage. Do they really think nobody sees? Or, are they growing increasingly crazed because they realize how many ARE really seeing the good coming from Trump and his crew?

Here were a few of my favorite moments of their pant-wetting last night...

*Al Greene (TX), lifting his leg repeatedly all over the President, who finally got escorted out. They are all termed, "unhinged", I suggest, because there is no main frame in their souls to which to attach anything with a hinge...

*The still grieving mothers of Lake Riley and Jocelyn Nungaray ages 24 and 12 at the time of their murders by illegals were accorded ZERO respect by the Left; they apparently could feel no sorrow or put themselves in another man's moccasins.

*A 13-year-old boy who has been fighting brain and spinal cancer since 2018, received ZERO accolades from the Left, when he became an honorary agent of the US Secret Service. The young man said that 'I will continue till my gas tank runs out and God calls me home'. Humans everywhere had misty eyes and the boy excitedly received his surprise badge/photo ID from the current Secret Service head, Sean Curran.

Democrats did not. 'Nuff said. Only one even bothered to clap, then Nicole Wallace made possibly the most disgusting comment of the evening...see above.

*One lib from NM held up a sign saying, "This is not normal". THAT, folks says it all. The incredible number of accomplishments on our behalf, crafted by the Trump Administration seems just wrong to them. Work on behalf of the people??? Who does that, they screech? Give us our billions!

Give us our perks!!

These followers of Obama, Biden and Marx are so far gone that they cannot recognize real solutions. I believe that they don't even see problems in real terms, the terms of us regular Americans who work and pay bills. After all, they created so many of them.

Because they are thus, they have narrowed their base to the tipping point. The Democrat Party has dealt themselves a severe blow. They won't quit, but they are dramatically weakened as a political organization..

As disgusted Americans move to embrace Trump's pro-American program, it is our time to help, to grow and strengthen, through all the generations.

Education, soon to be turned back to the community, will be a big start. then there is getting back with God.

To grow in depth and strength, we must return to a real God, not a "mother Earth god" or the dark angel himself. Then, we must do our best to try to be as He asks.

Those in Gen X and younger love their "devices" and games and "reality TV" – which is far from any reality I'D ever want – but won't get involved. In anything – community groups, or, Heaven forbid, the work force. Respect for others is a necessary part of joining the community, and being successful and happy therein.

When love for others over self returns, we will have reached a spark point to ignite a true groundswell of change in America. The Left needs to see this; I don't know, at this point, if they are capable. Ordinary people, maybe, but leadership, apparently not, at last not now.

Speaking of sparks, a wild fire began near me last night, shown in the picture above, and threatened hundreds of peoples' homes and farms, including my own. We nearly had to evacuate, but the firefighters and the rains came, and the fires ceased to threaten. Thanks be to both God and man. We only saw Trump on reruns, but were grateful to still have a home in which to do that.

Last night gave me perspective, for sure, and the necessary priority re-sort. From where I stood, with dear friends who had come to help, the Shakespearean mewling and puking of the Left looked even more ludicrous. "Ah, the giftie gie' us, to see ourselves as others see us." Wisdom from another bard long gone, poet Robt. Burns.

They should start teaching this stuff in schools again. America worked a lot better then.
