

Las Vegas Shooter: I Believe This Is Close To The Truth

A week ago yesterday, an evil coward slaughtered 58 human beings and wounded close to 500. The media feeding frenzy began. The Internet became an inferno of theories before blood even dried on the ground. Everything from who was responsible, Zionists and the Mossad, to cover ups regarding the 'lone wolf' narrative being repeated by cable networks and the disgraced 'mainstream' media. Multiple shooters, you name it. Headlines screaming Paddock converted to the phony religion called Islam; ISIS continues to insist he was one of their murderers.

After reading and reading my first impression based on what little provable facts were known about Stephen Paddock was that he might have snapped. We do know he was a big-time gambler who lived a very strange life. With the exception of a girlfriend and his family, didn't appear to be a social butterfly or have any real friends.

We have some idea although nothing is confirmed yet because none of his bank records have been released, Paddock was well off to the tune of about $2 million. We know he owned four residences in four states where he spent very little time at any of them. When he did, he was a loner and according to individuals interviewed who interacted with him, a very strange duck: Millionaire Stephen Paddock was a regular at retirees' \$3.50 lunch but barely spoke a word to anyone – and asked the cook for her enchiladas recipe the day he drove to Las Vegas to commit mass murder

"Local resident Marshall Meland, 78, who was enjoying lunch at the center, told DailyMailTV: 'We recognized Stephen when his face flashed up on TV. 'He last came in to the center around 11am last Thursday and checked in at the desk, but didn't stop for lunch like he usually does. 'Instead he went straight up to the counter to speak with the cook and asked her about an enchiladas dish she cooks, he wanted to know how she made it.' After that he left. No one took any notice of him, it wasn't until later after what he did that we realized he drove to Vegas that afternoon. Everyone at the center is shocked.

"Other diners at the senior center recall Paddock as an 'unsociable' and 'quiet' man who liked to sit alone to eat his lunch and who was 'in a world of his own'. Retired construction worker David Blake, 81, who has been coming to the center for 13 years, described him as an 'introverted' man who had little time for anyone. Mr. Blake said: 'He'd come in on and off, sometimes up to three times a week. 'He's been coming in at least a year and when I first saw him I thought he was a homeless person, he was unshaven, disheveled, quiet, he wasn't a big conversationalist. 'He'd sit on his own, but even if there was someone else on his table he always seemed to himself, I never saw him getting into steady conversations with anyone, he didn't mingle, he was just quiet."

Confirmed is the fact that Paddock was a high stakes gambler throwing down $20-$30 thousand at a time. Anyone who knows anything about gambling knows you don't win all the time. Allegedly he made a lot of money in real estate but so far, I haven't read or seen any anything that supports such a claim. There's flipping a house or two and then there's making big money in real estate. The point I'm making is that someone with that kind of gambling obsession could end up losing most of it. Not to mention the cost of keeping up four residences.

We know he sued a casino in 2011 for a fall, lost and had to pay all costs. That perhaps made him bitter. We know he did wire $100,000 to the Philippines a week before his heinous crime spree. We know his main squeeze is from the Philippines but according to LV police spokespersons, Paddock hired a prostitute who came to his room. There was a receipt for room service and we know the LVPD know more than they're telling.

My thought was Paddock believed he would get away with a revenge killing against casinos if in fact he'd run through most of his money; perhaps the hundred grand was to skip to the Philippines and creditors. Stay with the girlfriend and her family. People do snap and commit murder every day in this country. They literally snap in their mind and do what everyone who ever knew them from diaper age forward couldn't imagine in their worst nightmare. Like his family.

According to Sheriff Joseph Lombardo: "The Las Vegas gunman who killed 58 civilians and injured hundreds more before killing himself on Sunday had originally hoped to survive his shooting and flee justice – and likely had an accomplice, it has emerged. Stephen Paddock, 64, had planned to escape the 32nd floor of the Mandalay Bay hotel after firing on the Route 91 Harvest country music festival, Las Vegas Sheriff Joseph Lombardo revealed in a press conference Wednesday.

"Lombardo declined to reveal why he believed that Paddock had an exit planned, but said he was confident in the claim – and said that his scheme was so elaborate that he would have to be a 'super hero' to pull it off alone. Several law enforcement sources told NBC that investigators are looking to speak with a woman who was seen with Paddock in his last days, when his girlfriend was out of the country. They don't know if she's connected to the attack but want to speak with her to fill in their timeline of the lead-up to the attack."

What Lombardo declined to reveal will either come out from his department down the road or if the FBI decides they don't want you or the victims to know the truth will try to hide it just as they have done with all the videos from OKC and 9/11. Then FOIAs would have to be filed and because you're going up against the machine, you have to sue in court when the FBI refuses to give what you ask for. It's not cheap, either. I filed a lawsuit against the FAA in federal court when they refused to give me the documents I requested re 9/11. I won that case.

I don't have cable TV anymore. Networks like CNN, MSNBC and others all lie through their teeth so why bother? Even FOX picks and chooses only what they want you to know and rarely touch on the truth regarding false flag operations we know have been going on for decades. So, I continued plowing through all the articles on the Internet trying to see what could possibly be the truth behind such a sickening act.

A lot has been made about Paddock not acting alone and that's why several people interviewed believed there was more than one shooter. Police believe he had to have help somewhere along the way because of the meticulous planning. Officials also believe Paddock may not have acted alone: "Sheriff Joseph Lombardo said: "At face value he had to have some help at some point and we want to ensure that that's the answer. Maybe he was a superhuman who figured this out all on his own but it would be hard for me to believe that."

Many have called Paddock the perfect patsy but was he? Then I read several accounts of Paddock's previous employment history and red flags went up. I moved on from possibly a gambling loser who thought he could get revenge on Sin City to the very real possibility this was somehow tied to some alphabet soup agency. Please remember the 1993 World Trade Center bombing where six people died and not one of the FBI agents involved have served a single day in prison. I believe that was an FBI sting that went bad. You can make up your own mind.

♦ The 1993 World Trade Center Bombing: Decoys, Aliases and NeoConspiracy Theories

There is NO doubt in my mind whatsoever the OKC bombing was in fact a sting gone bad. Like many others, I spent more hours than I can count on that bombing including going to OKC to see for myself. I put together everything in one writing titled McVeigh's Second Trial. It is extensive but well worth the read because I GUARANTEE you there are FACTS in my piece that most Americans know nothing about.

Before leaving the truth movement, Patrick Briley, a truly great American who sacrificed so much in pursuit of the truth did one of the most exhausting and factual accounts on the OKC bombing. It is a must read. Written back in 2007, Patrick was way ahead of the media in warning Americans about Islamic terrorists here in America. Winter is almost upon us so bookmark and read one rainy or snowy weekend: The Oklahoma City Bombing Case Revelations:

“Another example of a clever tactic by federal officials to cover-up the OKC bombing was the intentionally deficient investigation and recent report on the OKC bombing by California Congressman Dana Rohrabacher. The report was issued the day after Christmas 2006 during the worst possible news cycle. Rohrabacher’s report was a whitewash and a limited hang out to deceive the public and reduce the exposure of culpable officials to accountability and liability claims. In fact, the evidence in this book indicates Rohrabacher himself was one of many officials, both Democratic and Republican, who had detailed prior warnings and prior knowledge of the Murrah Building bombing and the 9/11 style attack plot”.

The ATF and FBI agents involved not only got away with mass murder many of them were promoted down the road. 168 Americans including children murdered just like Paddock murdered 58 innocent Americans.

One article (below) got me to turn away from my early thoughts about the possibility Paddock was on a revenge killing is by Cliff Kincaid who I do consider an excellent and accurate researcher -although I do believe he’s still in denial about who really orchestrated 9/11. No, not Bush, Jr., although I’m probably in the minority in the alternative media who believes Bush, Jr. was not aware of what was to happen.

Anyway, there has been some reporting Paddock was involved in gun running. No question in my mind the slaughter at Benghazi had to do with illegal gun running. Long time career criminal Hillary Rodham Clinton and Barack Hussein should be in a federal prison for murder. If you have not watched 13 Hours: The Secret Soldiers of Benghazi (available on Netflix or rent it) you really should although it will break your heart. Congress and the Department of Justice are absolutely complicit in that cover up while Hillary and Obama live the high life.

Was Vegas an FBI Sting Gone Bad?

“It is terrible to contemplate, but the possibility that Stephen Paddock was an undercover federal operative or informant cannot be ruled out. He may have been either set up or used by ISIS and/or a federal agency in a scheme that backfired. The feds may have thought they were going to catch ISIS in the act of preparing a major terrorist attack. ISIS terrorists may have thought Paddock was one of them but realized at the last minute that it was a set-up. So they claimed him as one of their own...

“Perhaps he was a “lone wolf” who somehow “snapped.” But his arsenal, designed for a small terrorist army, and his “secret life,” have led to speculation Paddock was part of a gun-running and bomb-making operation similar to the federal Fast and Furious scandal in the Obama Administration. In this case, however, the targets were Islamists, not Mexican drug traffickers.

“The Fast and Furious scandal involved the U.S. sending weapons to Mexico that were used by drug cartels to murder a federal border agent, Brian Terry. What if Paddock was part of another such operation, launched under former President Obama, to entrap alleged terrorists? President Trump’s new FBI director, Christopher Wray, has only been on the job for about two months, and may not have been able to review or stop it.

“If the FBI had been able to stop the massacre, breaking into the hotel room at the last moment before the carnage, the Bureau would have looked like heroes in the eyes of the public. It would have managed to achieve some good publicity after the debacles involving Director James Comey, the Hillary email scandal, and Russia-gate.

“But something went dramatically wrong. Either way, if he was an operative or not, he was able to assemble a small arsenal of weapons in a hotel room. Didn’t anybody notice? Or was he being protected by authorities who thought they were going to nab members of a terrorist cell?

“All the facts are not in, but we know that one analysis of FBI undercover “sting” operations found they are now used in two of every three prosecutions involving people suspected of supporting ISIS, the Islamic State. The New York Times said, “...agents have helped people suspected of being extremists acquire weapons, scope out bombing targets and find the best routes to Syria to join the Islamic State, records show.”

I feel confident in writing that the majority of Americans have no idea what Cliff wrote above: the FBI has been conducting dangerous sting operations. This makes the most sense to me because as Cliff notes at the top of his piece, no motive is known and Paddock led an incredibly secret life.

The other thing Cliff writes is important: The FBI is investigating the LV massacre. I say that's the fox guarding the hen house just like OKC. Now, if it's true Paddock was part of an FBI sting gone bad it would answer a lot of questions but we the people will NOT get them from the White House, the FBI or any other government intelligence agency. Mark my words on that.

Revealed: Ashcroft, Tenet, Rumsfeld warned 9/11 Commission about 'line' it 'should not cross': "Senior Bush administration officials sternly cautioned the 9/11 Commission against probing too deeply into the terrorist attacks of September 11, 2001, according to a document recently obtained by the ACLU. The notification came in a letter dated January 6, 2004, addressed by Attorney General John Ashcroft, Defense Secretary Donald H. Rumsfeld and CIA Director George J. Tenet. The ACLU described it as a fax sent by David Addington, then-counsel to former vice president Dick Cheney."

The old "national security" blanket is being used (and has been for decades) to cover up the truth. It's a shame the agenda driven media that has the ability to reach tens of millions every day and evening no longer care about the truth. I have to wonder how much pressure is being put on the LVPD and their investigation by thugs in the FBI?

Paddock acquired all of his guns legally so no amount of new anti-gun laws would have made one difference. Of course, the blithering idiots on the boob tube like Jimmy Kimmel (who I've never watched), the usual collection of brain dead celebs from Hollywood and disgusting Democrat mouth pieces in Congress will continue their howling, but unless the gutless GOP in Congress cave, it's all just pre-election BS for next November.

Will we the people get the truth about that massacre as we have NOT about so many killings and attacks? Only the families can keep the pressure on as well as independent media and even that probably won't get it done. Look at the pressure put on the White House by the Jersey Girls (9/11 widows and mothers) while Bush, Jr., fought against a commission for two years. All the family members still trying to get the truth to this day. The same with OKC, TWA Flight 800 and the list goes on and on.

It's a moral crime we don't have a real Department of Justice (we still don't under Jeff Sessions) or courageous individuals in the U.S. Congress willing to get the truth no matter who goes down with all the lies. I know Judicial Watch and Larry Klayman continue in their respective organizations filing FOIAs and lawsuits trying to expose the whole truth about Hildebeast, her emails and the endless corruption paid for by you and me. Perhaps they will get involved down the road. In the meantime the questions will keep getting asked and hopefully, at least in the real media, the truth will out the lies.
