

Let's Return to the Old World Order

It may not be morning in America again but if you listen really hard you can hear the neighborhood rooster taking in a deep breath. Don't get me wrong, not everything is coming up roses, but change is blowing in the wind.

The New World Order is the one that is gasping for breath. I am not naïve' enough to think that all of our problems are simply going to disappear, but I am here to tell you that for the first time in a score of years I have hope for the future I am leaving to my grandchildren.

Father Knows Best may only be available in reruns but I believe that we stand at the intersection of Main and High with a renewed spirit now that Hillary has gone the way of the Wicked Witch of the West. America has chosen a sledgehammer rather than a broomstick.

When we find ourselves heading off of a cliff it would be a good idea if the driver of the car chose to hit reverse rather than FORWARD. We Americans have lost our way and sometimes the best way to get back on to the right course is to return to the place where we made the wrong turn.

I am reminded today of the cautionary phrase popularized by Rod Serling's Twilight Zone opening. "Look! A signpost up ahead. Next stop, the Twilight Zone." Thank God that Mom and Pop America can still read and that they heeded the signposts.

What was that chilling line from The Eagle's Hotel California..."You can check out anytime you like, but you can never leave." We were certainly careening toward the village of no return.

I have no illusions about Donald Trump. I have argued with my fellow Christians until I was blue in the face about the urgency I felt in making sure that the Clinton machine be defeated in the election of 2016. Since the days of Poppy Bush and his pro-abortion grand-family GW's clan, the New World Order has been rolling full bore like an out of control sixteen-wheeler down the interstate highway.

I warned that we were one election away from full-blown government tyranny crushing the rights of God-fearing Americans. As one who spends his time challenging the status quo I understood that government had become a malevolent dictator. Government had overthrown God and had already showed signs of being a wicked taskmaster to anyone who challenged its lordship.

Perhaps I have let my guard down but I no longer sleep with one eye open in fear of black SUV's pulling up my driveway in the middle of the night. The NWO is still alive and well but, at least for now, they are currently in defense mode pushing back against the new kid on the block at 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue.

I am so relieved Obama is gone. I am still rejoicing that the wicked witch is dead. Oh how I long for the Old World Order.

The American family is on life support. The intact Ozzie and Harriet family is a thing of the past. While our leaders argue about "global issues" Main Street America is gasping for breath. Government has their hands in everything from the size of the deck you can build onto your own home, to which restroom your son or daughter can tingle in, to what you can and cannot say about which particular special interest minority.

As Michael Savage would say, I want to return to the day when the chrome was thick and the women were straight. The New World Order is real and they are on the run. If Christians do not act and act NOW, the reprieve will be short lived. Our only hope is to return to the Old World Order.

Donald Trump stepped on the throat of political correctness. He hit the brakes on the out-of-control media manipulation of middle class minds. He has made straight-talking in vogue again.

For the first time in two generations We The People seem to actually have an opportunity to reclaim a semblance of control over our own lives. But Donald Trump is not king and we cannot count on him, and certainly not the Republican Party, to return America to our children. But there is a breach in the NWO wall and it is suddenly possible for us to run into the gap. Although a wall on the border would be nice, it is the wall of liberty that must be restored.

Let's face it friends, America needs to be rebuilt and I am not referring to our public infrastructure. America's moral infrastructure has crumbled and we cannot move forward until the foundations are restored. Donald Trump is decriminalizing the name of Jesus. That is the only foundation upon which we can rebuild...the only foundation which can endure.

James Madison warned us that "the Constitution" was made only for a moral and religious people. It is wholly inadequate to the government of any other."

The state motto in Ohio is a verse from the Scriptures. "With God, all things are possible." Do we believe it? Do we think that God can help us make America Great Again? We have tried it the secularist's way and it is obvious that their methods do not work. Is it time to simply throw in the towel and wait for the promised pre-tribulation evacuation?

The task that lies ahead of us is daunting but it does appear as if the Lord has given us one last shot. The Bible questions us, "If the foundations be destroyed what can the righteous do?" So what are we gonna do?

I say it is time to grab a hammer and a trowel and start laying some bricks.

Let's go back to the future. Let's re-establish the Old World Order.
