

Nationalizing our police and martial law

I have a dear friend who has an old dog who is also deaf so the 4th of July firecrackers didn't bother him. The other day she told me the dog didn't want to take his usual walk so she said maybe she'd have to start going to the gym. I laughed because it described me but then I ran into this interesting article in the September 21, 2015 NEW AMERICAN by William F. Jasper asking, "Are The Local Police to Blame?" and all the work this old dog was about to put into an article about the Dallas police massacre fell into place. So allow me to highlight some of what the article said by starting off with the quote by President Patrick V. Murphy, a former New York City police commissioner, stated in a 1974 interview, "I have no fear of a National Police Force and believed our police departments must be consolidated to make them more efficient." "I don't want one, but crime control is not working, and our 40,000 police departments are not sacred." Murphy's consolidation spiel was a regurgitations of the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration's (LEAA) propaganda aimed at convincing Americans that our system of locally controlled police must be replaced with a national model. Now we ask, why? Bear in mind folks, this was 40+ years ago and have we not seen enough of the murderous dangers inherent in nationalized police states under Hitler, Stalin, Mao, Pol Pot, and dozens of lesser dictators and autocrats?[1]

Not only do we have the same revolutionary rhetoric and the same street tactics producing the same deadly results like we saw in the sixties, but we are seeing, once again, the same alliance of radical thugs in the streets and radical suits in the suites. The same tax-exempt foundations (Ford, Rockefeller, Carnegie, Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation, Tides Foundation, Open Society Foundation (Soros- Hillary Clinton's sugar daddy, etc.) and corporate globalists who funded the incendiary Marxist-Leninist cadres that burned down our cities in the '60s (leaving millions of black Americans in even more desperate straits) are still shoveling billions of dollars to the radical arsonists who are pouring gasoline on the racial embers today.

They are also still funding scholarly reports, studies, commissions, and task forces that, not surprisingly, call for nationalizing and "standardizing" our police powers. In a nutshell, we are witnessing both "pressure from above" and "pressure from below" to demonize and paralyze local police and to promote the idea that federalizing our police will solve the reputed police crises.

IT'S NOT ABOUT SPONTANEOUS OUTBREAKS

Author William Jasper then goes on to state other articles in this magazine will show it is simply not true that the havoc now threatening to tear apart our country is the result of spontaneous outbreaks in response to "systemic racism" or "police brutality." He admits it does exist but compared to other countries, the U.S.A. comes out far better than most other countries in this regard. However, the point he wished to make is that race agitators- both exploiting and exaggerating the racism and police brutality issues (and even outright lying about and inventing race/police horror stories) while offering a "solution" (Centralizing power in Washington) that will make genuine abuse worse, not better.

HANDS UP DON'T SHOOT

The physical evidence from three separate autopsies of Michael Brown from Ferguson, Missouri provided the grand jury with an abundance of evidence that supported the claim by the white police officer, Darren Wilson, that he was not gunned down with his "Hands up, don't shoot" after he had reached inside the police vehicle and attacked Wilson and tried to get his gun. The forensic evidence also belies that claim that Brown (the “gentle giant” who had only minutes before been caught on video committing strong-arm robbery of a convenience store) was gunned down in cold blood.

MEDIA ADDS FUEL TO THE FIRE

And, of course, the “Hands Up, Don’t Shoot” went viral and is still often repeated and continues to feed the violence and racial turmoil. “That lie holds that the police pose a mortal threat to black Americans – indeed that the police are the greatest threat facing black Americas today,” wrote Manhattan Institute scholar Heather MacDonald in her December 2014 City Journal article “The Big Lie of the Anti-Cop Left Turns Lethal.” In the wake of the grand jury’s decision not to indict Officer Wilson, she noted, the “New York Times ratcheted up its already stratospheric level of anti-cop polemics. In an editorial justifying the Ferguson riots, the Times claimed that ‘the killing of young black men by police is a common feature of African-American life and a source of dread for black parents from coast to coast.’” Heather then goes on to cite statistics about black on black crimes.

Milwaukee County Sheriff David A. Clarke, Jr. Clarke who is a frequent guest on FOX blasts black “leaders” for playing the race card while ignoring the real crisis of black-on-black crime and blasts “the mealy-mouth crap from politicians who cause the conditions for a permanent underclass in America.” His comments stand in stark contrast to inflammatory bloviations from the liberal media. In an April 30, 2015 column for the Huffington Post entitled, “Take the Racial Justice Pledge,” Donna P. Hall, president and CEO of the Women Donors Network, wrote “the tragedy of lethal police violence against unarmed black men and women has become all too common...” and she went on to call on “the progressive donor community” to fund the proliferations of “racial justice” organizations that are responding to the “epidemic of racially charged police violence.”

Hall urged her fellow progressives to fund "Black-led-organizing for Black Liberation." Interesting, Hall is white, as are virtually all of her wealthy donor friends; in fact, every one of the "activists" pictured in a photo on the organization's web page appealing for "Black-led organizing for Black liberation" is...lily white. The Women Donors Network is one of numerous funding coalitions of white radicals that are funding tens of millions of dollars into phony grass-root "black-led" organizations that can be called on to materialize protesters on cue, whether the case be global warming, minimum wage legislation, abortion rights, homosexual rights, racism, or police brutality, or in the case of anti-Trump supporters who are paid $16.00 an hour to protest. The purpose of "black rage" cuts to the core of white supremacy and they are demanding change. I thought we got about all the change our country could handle when white guilt elected an ineligible guy from Kenya as President of the U.S.

In December 2010 I began a seven-part series on America's Creeping Revolution outlining how we are becoming a socialist/communist tyranny using tax-exempt Foundations, the public school system to indoctrinate the children at an early age for the New World Order and paralyzing the churches with the 501©3 tax exemption.

Let's cut to the core. Coach Dave Daubenmire went out on a limb in his July 7, 2016 article THE GREAT AWAKENING HAS STARTED and explained how political correctness, Cultural Marxism and Alinsky tactics put the kibosh on independent thought and speech. He said our battles aren't over race but a battle over culture when immigrants arrive and refuse to assimilate. Christianity is under attack like no time in modern history and the only thing holding back the death of Western Civilization is the White Heterosexual Christian Male. He says America has always been multi-ethnic but it has NEVER been multi-cultural. By and large it was the White Anglo Saxon Protestant that built the greatest nation the world had ever seen. And it's time to make America great again.

Regarding the Dallas assassinations of five police officers, Benghazi comes to mind when four of our young men were killed, our President was nowhere to be found and Secretary of State, Hillary Clinton later threw her arms in the air and asked, "What Difference Does It Make? " And while many have felt these false flag shootings such as Sandy Hook was about gun confiscation, is my imagination running away with me or were five more very fine police men in Dallas sacrificed in order to move our citizen police to a Praetorian Guard of ancient Rome which was gradually transformed into an oppressive standing army and/or a Nationalized Police force? That's not so far-fetched if you can remember that everything is planned by our socialist planners years in advance. Martial Law may also be declared to thwart the 2016 presidential election and keep Obama in the White House.

As a foot note, my Texas Truth Seeker friend said that the really good Sandy Hook videos have been "eliminated" from public eyes; however, she sent me the following website and is surprised it is still on the Internet.

Let's be honest, our young folks have been used as cannon fodder for eons in wars that enriched the international bankers. And the New World Order Jewish architect, former Secretary of state Henry Kissinger has said, "Military men are just dumb, stupid animals to be used as pawns in foreign policy," as quoted by Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein in their book, "The final Days" and we should be deeply concerned that the presumptive presidential candidate Donald Trump has met with Kissinger.

Jasper ends the New American article by reminding us our Founding Fathers viewed with great apprehension the dangers of centralized government. As a result, they placed constitutional chains on federal policing powers, reserving the vast majority of those functions to "the States, or to the People.” If we have genuine problems with a local police organization, we must avail ourselves of the local means already extant: the offices of the mayor, city council, county commissioners, county grand jury, local news media, local citizen education groups. If we want our law enforcement agencies truly “to protect and serve,” we must be sure that they remain the servants, not the masters. And that can be accomplished by keeping them local – and independent of any controls from national politicians and national government institutions.
