

Precariat, Bilderberg and the microchip

The world's elite is at the annual Bilderberg Group meeting in Dresden, Germany. Among the top concerns of the annual gathering of world leaders, CEOs, super-billionaires, and other members of planet Earth's ruling class are the "precariat" and the middle class. "Precariat" is a term promoted by Guy Standing, a British economist, which describes a fast growing class of people who have no hope for a decent future, can only find part time or temporary jobs at minimum wage, and have to do all kinds of work for which they don't get paid. This rapidly expanding "precariat," according to Standing, is composed of a "growing class of people who feel insecure about their jobs, communities, and life in general... In addition, they are often paid in cash." They are growing in number in America, Europe, China, and many other areas. They include "grey market domestics paid in cash," those who are not technically trained, seniors who struggle with disappearing pensions, retirement funds, and savings, and soaring health care costs. It also includes single mothers who have difficulty making money and the millennial generation who were promised jobs upon graduation and often can only find part time and minimum wage jobs.

The "precariat" class is of great concern to the elite and Bilderberg Group because this group is angry, anxious, and alienated and is driving the rise of populist politicians like Donald Trump, Bernie Sanders, and, in Europe, right wing and nationalist candidates whom the elite cannot control. The reason the Bilderberg Group is discussing both the "precariat" and middle class is because the middle class in America and other places is shrinking, which is fueling the rise of the "precariat." Outsourcing of manufacturing, along with trade treaties and economic policies that favor the one percent have gutted significant sectors of the American Middle Class.

In America, Europe, China, Japan, and the many other places in the world where there was an existing or emerging middle class, the global economy, which globalists in the U.S. and the EU promised us would bring more economic prosperity, has caused the opposite through downward pressure on wages due to global competition. When the beginnings of these trends first began to emerge with events like Rockefeller going to China in the 1970s and the creation of NAFTA, GATT, and the WTO, etc., the American people were told through a corporate controlled media that this would allow Americans to prosper in the new global market place.

Of course, the globalists knew what the real outcome would be from the beginning. That is why during this entire time the one percent have grown incredibly richer while most Americans have grown poorer. In anticipation of global chaos and monetary crisis, the elite, through organizations like Bilderberg, quietly created a technological surveillance state for the purpose of total control. I go into greater detail about this and how you personally can overcome it, in my book, A Prophecy of the Future of America 2016 – 2017."

The elite, or "Plutocracy," have been buying up large refuges and farms in the more remote places of the world, where you fly in by plane. One particular filmmaker, whose movies have been some of the biggest blockbusters of all times, has bought a very large and fortified farm in New Zealand, which he can fly to if things get out of control.

The elite know that chaos, wars, and massive unrest are coming and they are exploring options that were once considered impossible. For example, in recent months many mainstream financial publications have floated the idea of a universal basic income for everyone, which could hypothetically be perhaps $30,000.00 a year. Although Sweden just voted down such a proposal the idea is still being promoted and seriously considered. Of course along with the idea of a universal basic income goes a massive redistribution of wealth where the wealth of the middle class would be redistributed...and the wealth of the elite would not be touched.

The idea of a basic income was proposed by economist Guy Standing in an article entitled "The Growing Precariat: Why We Need a Universal Basic Income," in the Singularity Hub, dated March 30, 2015.

Underneath the pleasant sounding words, universal basic income is simply repackaged Communism. As the old expression goes, "There is no such thing as a free lunch." In return for your universal basic income you would have to give up all your freedoms and rights and live in some kind of totalitarian society.

But the elite are considering other options regarding the war, chaos, social unrest, and violence that are coming. There is a Guardian story entitled "What If the Mega-Rich Just Wanted To Escape The Earth They Destroy?" It turns out that this is not just some kind of paranoid science fiction story; a number of the wealthiest people in the world are already building rockets and technology to be able to live on Mars. Amazon's Jeff Bezos, Tesla's Elon Musk, and Virgin Galactic's Richard Branson are planning to build colonies on Mars. But some are speculating that they are planning an exit-strategy like in the movie Elysium starring Matt Damon and directed by Jodie Foster. What if World War III erupts and radiation, biological plagues, and other cataclysmic events begin to happen? Why wouldn't a group of elite people who have the finances to build a somewhat luxurious civilization on Mars, along with the technology to get there, use it?

However, the Bilderberg Group meetings in past years have explored microchip implant technologies along with RFID transmitters. The Bilderberg and other elite groups have publicly discussed their plans for a cashless society, microchip implants, and a one world economic system, one world religion, and a one-world government. The elite see trouble coming...trouble they created by vastly increasing the wealth of the one percent and lowering the wealth of the rest of the population. That was not an accident; it was planned because at the highest levels of the elite they see themselves as "god men and women" who have the genetic right to rule over the human race.

The model for a slave race ruled by god men began in ancient Babylon and then moved through the "Pharaoh-god-king" system of Egypt and eventually into Europe with the divine right of kings concept. Although it is not talked about openly it is the belief system of the Illuminati and other secret societies that covertly operate through the Technocratic Elite or Scientific Dictatorship.

At these highest levels of the elite, it is about total control of the Human Race, where they rule like gods. In order to do that they have used a combination of occult or supernatural powers, science, technology, religion, economic systems, and government. The elite desire a cashless society because one of their primary control grids is the "debt-slavery" system where individuals and nations become slaves through debt. It is a monetary system based on illusion or a kind of alchemical magic, such as printing money from nothing and then loaning it for interest. A cashless society allows for the absolute control of money, nations, and lives. The logical next step is to force people to accept an implanted microchip to be able to buy and sell...the Mark of the Beast. In "A Prophecy of the Future of America 2016 -2017," I devote several chapters to the reality that money is a "magical" system.

What is interesting about this is that this is that it is described in Revelation Chapter 13, where no one can buy or sell without the Mark of the Beast. Once again, total control. But where all of this gets really interesting is that in the mid-1600s Sir Francis Bacon planned for America to be the New Atlantis and the head of the New World Order. Atlantis was the legendary super-civilization ruled by ten philosopher-kings. There are some researchers who believe that the ten philosopher kings who ruled Atlantis were actually "god kings," or more specifically Nephilim, which were the product of interspecies breeding between fallen angels and human women.

According to the Book of Enoch, referenced in the Book of Jude, these fallen angels gave certain technology and science to Mankind on Mount Hermon near Phoenicia. There is an area called Cydonia on Mars which contains what looks like several multi-sided pyramids, a triangular walled enclosure, a straight wall, a dome, and what at first looked like an immense statue of a face (it may be only an eroded mesa). Located on the coast of ancient Phoenicia there was an ancient city called Sidonia or Sidon. Perhaps there was some kind of ancient, even prehistoric connection between the Cydonia region of Mars and the Sidonia region of Phoenicia. Is it possible that the fallen angels who descended on Mount Hermon had also resided on Mars, and that they built the Martian pyramids? My editor, William B Stoecker, has written an article about Mars and its anomalies, published in the latest issue of "Atlantis Rising" magazine."

The basis for the belief in the Illuminati bloodlines is that the ancient "god men" or Nephilim like Nimrod, were the ancestors of the families or bloodlines who rule the world through powerful secret societies. It is not an accident that we see two powerful occult symbols on the back of the U.S. dollar, a pyramid, and then on the right an image of the legendary bird, the Phoenix. The Phoenix is a symbol of the New World Order, but it is directly tied into ancient Phoenicia and the belief that an elite race, the fallen angels, interbred with human women.

There are numerous occult images of a Phoenix bird with the words “Ordo Av Chao,” Latin for “order out of chaos.” The New World Order is supposed to be established through order out of chaos, and the rise of a “precariat” class and mass social unrest is a form of chaos. This leads to a one-world religion, one world economic system, and one world government. This also brings in an economic system where you cannot buy or sell without a microchip implant.

What if the elite really do escape to Mars? The whole thing sounds so bizarre that it would have been laughable 20 years ago. But we live in a time where the elite are already building the rockets for a very serious attempt at colonizing Mars (they may discover that it is already occupied). We live in a time when artificial intelligence and robots may destroy the jobs of millions of people on planet Earth. In addition, a cashless society could be implemented at anytime along with the mass distribution of microchip implants. We have moved from reality to artificial reality. As Dorothy said to Toto in The Wizard of Oz, “I have feeling we’re not in Kansas anymore.”
