

Real Story Behind The SHole Comment

President Donald J. Trump articulates the most colorful comments heard by any leader since Teddy Roosevelt—one of the most popular presidents in U.S. history.

Trump blurts out what everyone mutters in the bar-rooms, pool halls, card games, living rooms, diners, restaurants, recreation centers, car pools and conferences. He articulates what average Americans grumble daily.

Last week, he hit the big time when one of most anti-American U.S. Senators, Dick Durbin (D-IL), a man representing the most lawless city in America, Chicago—snuck out of a meeting to paraphrase the president with his own interpretation of failed third world countries. Durbin created the “Shole” rendition of that meeting.

That comment gave the mainstream press a field day for their moral and righteous indignation. Jake Tapper, Shepard Smith, Anderson Cooper, Jonathan Karl, et al. Surely, House reps Maxine Waters, Sheila Jackson, John Lewis and other “esteemed” members of the Black Caucus—puckered up their lips—with their own versions of Trump’s vernacular.

Exactly what do you call countries like Haiti, Honduras, El Salvador, Congo, Pakistan, Sudan, Ethiopia, Zimbabwe, Somalia and the like-destination resorts for Carnival Cruise ships? Your favorite retirement countries of choice? The wings of humanity's highest and best aspirations? Paragons of happiness and human triumph?

Let's get real: they represent sholes, and everyone tries to escape them, but the reason they remain horrible places stems from the fact that the people who created them, won't change them, and recreate them in the countries they invade. Look at the streets of Minneapolis, Los Angeles, Chicago, New York, Miami and other places where those people migrate. Look at downtown Paris, France or Montreal, Canada-where immigrants trash the places as if every street corner equated to their own garbage cans. Has anyone seen the outskirts of Mexico City? I saw at least 1-3 million people living in cardboard shacks, with tires holding down roof tarps, and everyone does their daily constitutional with the chickens. No toilets, no running water, no decency. Yet the Mexican government won't do anything to put in toilets or porta potties or some kind of sanitation system. The Mexican elite won't do anything to improve their own country or the citizens of Mexico. They live on the edge of disaster because of their choices.

At the same time, many presidents said much worse, much nastier, much more racist comments, and more to the point.

A brief history of presidential profanity...please calm yourselves, everyone!

Abraham Lincoln: "There is nothing to make an Englishman sh*t quicker than the sight of General George Washington."

Barack Obama (speaking in the 3rd person): "Obama really drew the ire of the pious, calling opponent Mitt Romney a 'bullsh*tter.' Sometimes the dirty word is the most precise."

Joe Biden: "This is a big fking deal."

Dick Cheney: "Cheney reportedly told Vermont Senator Patrick

Leahy to 'go fk [himself].'"

George W. Bush: "Commented on the presence of New York Times reporter Adam Clymer. Believing he had an audience of one, Bush called Clymer a 'major-league asshole.'"

Barack Obama: "I don't think I should take any sh*t from anybody on that, do you?"

Richard Nixon: "The Watergate tapes put the phrase 'expletive deleted' on the map."

Lyndon Johnson: "I do know the difference between chicken sh*t and chicken salad." LBJ also said that when he passed the voter rights acts, "Those niers will be voting for democrats for the next 50 years."

John F. Kennedy: "This is obviously a fk-up."

Harry Truman: "In Truman's eyes, General Douglas MacArthur was a "dumb son of a bitch," and Nixon was 'a shifty-eyed goddamned liar.'"

Colorful language from Trump? You bet! He says it like most Americans in those coffee shops tell it: like it is!

The fact remains: our elected leaders like U.S. Senators Dick Durbin, House rep Nancy Pelosi, Barbara Boxer, Michael Bennet, Charles Schumer, Jeff Flake, John McCain and the majority of the House and Senate members keep screwing the American people by NOT protecting our borders, by NOT stopping 350,000 illegal anchor baby births annually, by not stopping chain migration and diversity visas, by importing Moslem terrorists, by not passing E-Verify, not stopping mass immigration from shole countries, and worse.

But they do maintain endless and useless wars like Iraq, Afghanistan, and Vietnam (go see the latest movie "The Post" where Daniel Ellsberg exposed the Vietnam War for what it was: a money maker for the elite and killing field for all of our kids), finance with our money 450,000 military personnel on 700 bases in 80 countries around the world—for NO purpose whatsoever ever other than “empire” that none of us asked for or want. They keep importing refugees that cannot function in our society and leech our welfare dollars meant for our citizens, i.e., Somalians, Sudanese, Congolese, Mexicans, Haiti, Pakistanis, Ethiopians, and the like. They refuse to bring jobs to our inner-city ghettos and they keep compounding our $20 trillion debt, while they vote raises for themselves for doing such poor jobs.

To tell the truth, the biggest shole in America, you guessed it, the 535 members of Congress that remain on course to turn our country into another Haiti or El Salvador or MS 13 stronghold, or Moslem caliphate if we don't force term limits and eject those people out of the halls of Congress.
