

Ted Cruz – the anatomy of a neo-con

The Characteristics of a Neo-Con

It would be extremely difficult to list all the characteristics – what goes into the make-up of a Neo-Conservative. But there are a few attributes which are necessary in order for one to successfully arrive at this destination.

The first attribute one must have is a high level of deceitfulness, for his/her first objective is to deceive the opposition into perceiving them to be one of their own.

To be successful in this, one would necessarily have to have a certain level of acting ability. Why? Because they are constantly living and interacting with, and in the midst of, the forces they are striving to deceive. This, of course, means they have to be gifted with an above average intelligence to successfully pull off this long-time façade. This is true inasmuch as they could, in an unguarded moment, say something, or act in a way which could reveal some clue as to who and what they really are.

The Republican Promises of the 2014 Election

Many Americans are wondering what happened regarding the results of the 2014 elections. Prior to the election, according to all campaign rhetoric, the Republicans were going to take control of running the government. They told us there were going to be changes in the direction of the country to a more traditional, pro-American government, both in foreign and domestic policy.

That wasn't what happened, was it? Instead of turning things around, the new Republican majority teamed up with Obama and further consolidated his agenda for “FUNDAMENTALLY TRANSFORMING AMERICA.” They actually supported him in his secretly negotiated so-called “free trade” agenda which consists of the Trans-Pacific partnership (TPP) and the Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership (TTIP).

All this came about through the leadership of John Boehner, Speaker of the House, and Mitch McConnell, Senate Majority Leader, both very high up on the list of Neo-Cons. Yet, they were only the leadership, there were many others, both in the Senate, as well as the House, who had to have been in on this traitorous operation of supporting something that would start us down the slippery slope to a massive loss of freedom and independence as a nation. Then there were those who possibly knew what was going down, and others that didn't – they were just dupes.

How and why were the results of the 2014 elections a disaster? And why should we be giving it any attention? It's very simple: The Republican Party, especially at the leadership level, and to some degree in the rank and file, has arrived at the point where it is fairly well saturated with NEO-CONS, i.e., so-called phony conservatives.

Okay, but what is a neo-con? What does one look like, and how do they operate?

First, let's start off with what they are. To begin with, they are a spin-off from Trotsky, you know, the agent who supposedly broke away from Lenin. His followers were called Trotskyites, which doesn't mean that the goals of Lenin and Trotsky were different, only that they disagreed on the method for achieving the goals. However, I believe it was mostly a strategic, or theatrical exercise which allowed Trotsky access to opportunities he otherwise would not have had.

Here's how they operate. At first, they get to a position so that they have access, or connections with authority figures in, let's say government, business, the media, and academia. Then, by using a patient strategy, they begin building their public image as a conservative by means of their association with those who are perceived to be high up in conservative (this being their target) circles, but also in neo-conservative circles as well.

It goes without saying, that regardless of which faction they associate with, they are secure in retaining their image as a conservative, for the simple reason that 99% of the public perceives all of the associations frequented by them to be conservative.

Senator Cruz as a Neo-Con Example

As an example, let's focus on someone who fits the afore going description. And for that exercise, let's choose Senator Ted Cruz:

Writing in an article, "TED CRUZ NEEDS A CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION TO PASS THE NAU", Kelleigh Nelson had this to say about Senator Cruz. "Ted Cruz always tells the crowd what they want to hear, depending on to whom he's speaking. If you ask most Republicans who Ted Cruz is, they'll likely tell you that he's an Evangelical Christian with strong conservative values and won't compromise. He's certainly spent all his time in the Senate during his attempted government shutdowns trying to convince people of that. Those Republicans would be wrong on both counts."

"Think he isn't a neo-con?" Along with asking the question, she posts a photo of him speaking at a Heritage Foundation event, one of the top phony rightwing shills for the NW0.

Continuing on she states, "For all his allure as an outsider, Canada-born Ted Cruz is in fact an insider playing a role similar to the one Barack Obama played back in 2008 when his handlers portrayed him as the hope and change candidate out of nowhere. Ted Cruz set out to be an elitist from the very beginning.”

Then there’s the following according to Jason Zengerle’s piece in GQ Magazine, “As a law student at Harvard, he refused to study with anyone who hadn’t been an undergrad at Harvard, Princeton, or Yale. Says Damon Watson, one of Cruz’s law-school room-mates. “He said he didn’t want anybody from ‘minor ivies’ like Penn or Brown.”

Based upon this revelation, he is endowed with other characteristics, and or attributes. This could be a subdued, covert arrogance in addition to a super ego.

Much can be discerned about Cruz’s character by checking out those with whom he is in connection with, and especially his list of donors:

According to Kevin “Coach” Collins, Ted Cruz maybe “just following the rules the same as everybody else” but that is just the problem. Ted Cruz is following the rules the same as everybody else in the phony rightwing neo-cons.

There is a simple reason why people give politicians money. They want something in return. Whatever the particular need is, the money flows. Those who show up in Washington and make it clear that they won’t “play ball” are ignored when looking for donations.

An implied deal is made when every check changes hands.

Cruz has a carefully cultivated image of being that rare person who is a member of Congress and an outsider. This begs the question: Is Cruz really seen as an outsider by those who stuff money in his pockets? Highly doubtful.

An examination of Cruz’s reported campaign donations finds that his name is listed along with some of the most loathsome people of both parties. It shows they all eat from the same trough.

Goldman Sachs, the company his wife works for, which is the quintessential "Wolf of Wall Street" and an ATM for Democrats, gave Cruz $69,350. They also gave at least $10,000 to both Nancy Pelosi and Steve Israel. They don't donate to those they don't see as team players. Don't forget their low interest loan to Ted and Heidi when he ran for the Senate of Texas.

The pro-amnesty Club for Growth gave Cruz $705,000 and spent another $1 million independently in Iowa to support amnesty.

Warren Buffet, a strong financial backer of amnesty has given Cruz $27,750 and Hillary $25,000.

The Koch Brothers, who are strong financial Backers of amnesty, gave Cruz $23,750. Don't ever believe the Koch's and their Americans for Prosperity are conservative, they're anything but.

And the list goes on.

I was very much pro-Cruz at one time; then I came across the first red flag: which was the revelation that his wife, Heidi, was a term member of the Council on Foreign Relations, and was a member of the CFR's Task Force, BUILDING a NORTH AMERICAN COMMUNITY.

According to Kelleigh Nelson in her article, "TED CRUZ, HENRY KISSENGER AND THE GLOBALISTS", in newswithviews.com, December 8, 2015, "The Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) calls the NAU, the North American Community. In reality, it is the joining of Canada, America and Mexico into one big super State, just as Europe was joined into one big European Union. Quite obviously, Donald Trump's comment about illegal criminal aliens has jeopardized the plan that has been in the works since 2006, and even before. The global elite, through the direct operations of Bush and his administration are responsible."

If the Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP), which Cruz supports, is ratified by the Congress and Senate, then the NAU will be automatic; we will have open borders with hordes of people flooding into our country that will be embedded with terrorists, and no telling what else.

So, if you are concerned, call your Congressman and Senators. Tell them to oppose anything relating to Obama's so-called "free trade" agenda. Also tell them to oppose any legislation concerning controlling the internet, because we need it to be able to continue the fight to preserve our freedom, what little we have remaining.

What we are having to deal with is the influence of very evil forces. It is hard to describe them to the extent of their evilness. Many people, at times, refer to individuals of these forces as SOBs, but this is wrong. To begin with, it is a misnomer – there is no way any of them can be the son of a female canine, and even if that were possible, calling them one would be an up-grade, for they have a long way to go to get to that level.

What I have presented here is only the tip of the iceberg of what I have unearthed about Senator Cruz, but I have written enough for anyone to think about. In addition, Cruz is not the only one of the candidates for the Oval Office that harbor these sentiments.

Be strong in your calls and letters to the traitors in DC, repeat them often, and go into your prayer closet and pray for our country. She needs a strong leader who will oppose neo-con and leftist efforts, and we have only one to choose from, Donald J. Trump.
