

The birth of the queen of corruption, Hillary Rodham Clinton

“If ever time should come, when vain and aspiring men (or women) shall possess the highest seats in Government, our country will stand in need of its experienced patriots to prevent its ruin.” – Samuel Adams (1722–1803) Father of the American Revolution, Patriot and Statesman

Evil is a cancerous and destructive force that destroys everything around it. One who plays host to demonic/satanic entities will eventually be destroyed by those same forces they have given themselves over to.... And this person has the blood of thousands on her hands and soul. A tree is known by its fruit and hers is foul and rotten beyond human comprehension. – Ralph Rowe, on Hillary Clinton

✘ High School with Hillary

In 1960, I started high school at Maine Township H.S. East, in the Village of Park Ridge, Illinois. Park Ridge was a strongly conservative and Republican suburb in the northwest area of Chicago. In 1961, Hillary was at the exact same school. I graduated in 1964 from the largest class who ever attended at Maine East, 1,029 students, and in 1965, Hillary transferred to the brand new Maine South for her senior year.

Hillary's first book, "It Takes a Village" was based on the name of the town she was raised in, the Village of Park Ridge.

I was not a friend of Hillary Rodham's, but I was a Goldwater girl with her and knew her from that perspective. For readers who are too young to remember Barry Goldwater, he was our last truly constitutionally conservative Republican nominee in 1964. Many writers have compared Donald J. Trump and his treatment by the GOP to the same treatment received by Barry Goldwater. As a matter of fact, George Romney, father of Willard Mitt, who was in the primary that year, was so angry that he didn't win, that he and his entire family voted for the corrupt and murderous Lyndon Baines Johnson. Sounds like so many of our traitorous GOP today!

✘ A mock election, where Hillary was for Senator Goldwater, was held Hillary's class, and she supported Goldwater who won the school election.

Yes, Hillary Clinton was a strong Republican in those days. Paul Carlson, who taught US History and government for 50 years at Maine East, actually received a letter from Hillary Clinton stating she would always be a strong conservative Republican. Paul Carlson was just that, and he was beloved by every student who was fortunate enough to have him as their teacher. He passed away in 2008 and taught more than 14,000 students. Once you were in his classes, your life was changed forever.

Hillary's real personality came through over and over during high school, and I can testify to her arrogance and self-aggrandizement. A perfect example is when she pretended to be a journalist from Time magazine conducting an interview, with herself as the subject. Much of the interview featured her own accomplishments, even interrupting herself to expound on her attributes. In this self-interview, the last question she asked was, "What was your ambition in high school?" Her answer was, "To marry a senator and settle down in Georgetown." Quite obviously, she's attained the goal and more.

Hillary was very accomplished as well as an honor roll student. This website contains a full overview of her high school activities.

One must remember that when she transferred from Maine East, which had a student population of over 5,000 youngsters, to Maine South, the population of her class was then less than half of what it had been. Her competition was greatly reduced, giving her higher percentages, which she wouldn't have had at Maine East.

Hillary, Methodist Youth Minister Don Jones, and Saul Alinsky

Don Jones became the Youth Minister at the Methodist Church in Park Ridge in 1961.

He was instrumental in destroying the traditional upbringing of many of his young charges, and Hillary Rodham was one of them. Jones was a liberal social justice Methodist youth minister who became a mentor to Hillary Rodham in the early 60s. He was the one who pulled her away from her father's "Goldwater Girl" roots via Alinsky.

I dare say few people who have done research on Hillary actually understand that Don Jones was the catalyst who changed her and brought her into the  world of Alinsky. Even Dinesh D'Souza's latest movie doesn't tell this.

Don Jones, graduate of Drew University Divinity school, Hillary, NJ Gov. Tom Kean, then Drew University's president, at the school's 1996 graduation. Clinton spoke and received an honorary degree.

From CNN's article on Hillary's Park Ridge Methodist Youth Minister, Don Jones, it states:

From the moment Jones arrived in Park Ridge, he was on thin ice, according to a number of people close to him. He was not a "fundamentalist" or "literalist," said Peter Jones, and that rubbed some in the community the wrong way.

"It was a conservative community and church," his son said, "And he was a free thinker."

"He wasn't a religious figure that tried to indoctrinate or tell people what to think or feel or believe," said David Jones. "He used a method that really drew people out and questioned them."

So just two years after he moved to Park Ridge, Jones left. And although it is not totally clear, Ricketts and others said his unorthodox style may have been the reason.

How sad it is that Hillary Clinton even met Saul Alinsky, and we have Rev. Don Jones to thank for changing this young girl and many like her, from Constitutional conservatives into the Luciferian Marxist anti-God beliefs of Saul Alinsky.

Hillary would later describe Alinsky as a "great seducer" of young minds, as did Jones, which was apparently the reason that Jones brought his wide-eyed teens to meet with the radical whose politics Jones liked. Jones succeeded. Hillary was taken in, and she has been forever lost to the leftist, agnostic, Alinsky who dedicated his book, "Rules for Radicals" to Lucifer.

The Rev. Jones's point in bringing the youngsters to Alinsky was obviously not religious since Alinsky was anathema to anything religious and especially to Christianity. The youth minister's goal was social-political. Like Jones, Alinsky was dedicated to advancing the interests of the Proletariat, or what Alinsky called the "Have-Nots." For Hillary, that first encounter was just the beginning. Alinsky answered an interview question with, "Hell would be heaven for me. All my life I've been with the have-nots. Over here, if you're a have-not, you're short of dough. If you're a have-not in hell, you're short of virtue. Once I get into hell, I'll start organizing the have-nots over there. They're my kind of people."

And you see the results today. Again, we must look at the roots of where her cancerous evil comes from, just as my friend Ralph Rowe stated in the quote above.

Conclusion

Hillary Clinton should never be anywhere near our White House again. This woman is corrupt and rotten to her very core. We cannot survive four years of her running the country. There is so much more to tell about this Queen of Corruption!
