

The Left's Apparent Coup D'état Against Trump, Version 2.0

By Cherie Zaslowsky

August 2, 2024

Much to the Left's chagrin, Donald Trump appears to be unstoppable.

The Dems and their allies have tried everything—impeachments, a stolen election, the Mar-a-lago raid, multiple bogus “lawfare” cases—to keep him out of the White House. Why wouldn't they go for broke and try to kill him, as he's clearly poised to become the 47th President of the United States?

Apparently, they did.

If so, this was their second coup d'état against him—this one coming in anticipation of his winning the 2024 election. The first was the stolen election as a result of the Color Revolution in 2020, leading up to the faux “insurrection” on January 6th that provided cover for the real insurrection: the overthrow of our government and our legitimately elected President.

As new facts emerge about the assassination attempt on Trump, the picture appears to go far beyond “mere incompetence.”

For example, we learned this from Secret Service Director Kimberly Cheatle, a very caring person adamant about protecting...her staff:

That building in particular has a sloped roof at its highest point. And so, you know, there's a safety factor that would be considered there that we wouldn't want to put somebody up on a sloped roof.

Placing Madame DEI Cheatle as Director of the Secret Service was tantamount to putting Inspector Clouseau in charge of the operation. After all, Clouseau could be counted on to put the

Inspector Clouseau • Character Chronicles

Marx brothers in key positions as counter-snipers, so instead of Cheatle's agents guarding the rooftop from would-be assassins, they sat inside the adjacent building like fireman drinking coffee and playing cards in the fire station, while the assassin clambered up to the roof, his backpack full of ammo and a rangefinder, and his AK-15 in tow, in full view of many bystanders who kept unsuccessfully trying to alert law enforcement.

Then for the local police, we have the Keystone Cops or Three Stooges, one of whom hoists his buddy up to the roof to check things out. He takes a peek, and upon seeing the assassin—who of course points his rifle at him—he panics and promptly falls to the ground. Does he, or do Moe or Curly immediately contact Clouseau and tell him to get Trump off the stage and to safety? Not a chance. That is, either the Stooges hopelessly bungled their chance to save the day, or they did contact the Secret Service D-Team, who then fumbled the ball themselves.

This grossly unfunny comedy of errors nearly resulted in the death of former President Donald Trump.

ENTER THE PATSY

Many believe God Himself protected Trump, causing him to move his head a few millimeters out of harm's way. Dan Bongino says Trump saved his own life. Either way, the D-team put Trump in the crosshairs and kept him there for the potential kill shot.

But even with Clouseau at the helm and the total absence of real security in the environs, nothing would have happened without one more essential ingredient: a shooter.

It's not as if dozens of would-be assassins were waiting in the wings for such a golden opportunity. In fact, no one could have known in advance that Trump would be a sitting target from a nearby unsecured rooftop. No one, that is, who hadn't participated in the planning and orchestration of the assassination plot.

So how did Thomas Crooks, an unprepossessing skinny kid barely out of his teens, know that he'd have an easy time getting past all the layers of security at this particular Trump rally with its crowd of some 50,000 people?

How did he know that particular rooftop would be unsecured? How did he know he could cart a rifle across an open field—while riding his bicycle no less, that he'd conveniently stashed in his van—and lurk suspiciously by the side of the AGR building before eventually climbing onto the roof, and that no law enforcement officer would holler, “Hey son, what are doing there? Trying to climb onto that roof? Hand over that gun!” and detain or arrest him on the spot?

How did he know he could carry his AK-15 in broad daylight and position himself on the roof to take a kill shot aimed at Trump's head with no interference?

He couldn't know. And it's likely he wouldn't have dared to try unless...someone had recruited him. Someone who may have told him this would be a perfect opportunity for him to make his mark on the world, or to save “our democracy,” or some equally duplicitous lure.

Someone likely set him up. Could that someone hail from deep in the bowels of the Biden administration? As Chuck Schumer once famously said regarding Trump: “Let me tell you: You take on the intelligence community – they have six ways from Sunday at getting back at you.”

Saturday, July 13th was arguably “way number six.”

We’ve also learned that a counter-sniper actually spotted Crooks and labeled him “suspicious” twice – the second time, he was on the rooftop!

That counter-sniper took a photo and sent it to the command center at 5:45pm, 26 minutes before Crooks fired on Trump! So now we have the smoking conspiratorial gun before the smoking AK-15.

Only this FUBAR mess-up was far from Clouseau-style good-natured bumbling—it was apparently a treasonous plot for a coup-d’état in advance of the upcoming election Donald Trump is on track to win.

As FDR once said: “In politics, nothing happens by accident. If it happens, you can bet it was planned that way.”

And to add insult to injury, shameful DEI Kim Cheatle predictably stonewalled Congress when called to account, reminiscent of Harvard’s DEI former president. These “equity” mediocrities apparently lack the

Secret Service director Kimberly Cheatle resigns

YouTube • CBS Evening News • Jul 24, 2024

YouTube

Director

brains to understand they've brought disgrace upon the institutions that hired them, as well as the integrity to step down before they're asked to do so.

Kimberly did finally resign—only when pushed hard— after what The Hill called her “disastrous appearance before Congress,” only to leave us with another stonewaller, Acting Director Ronald Rowe. At least we did get the satisfaction of watching several Senators rake him over the coals. Now we need to see all those responsible fired and/or prosecuted for malfeasance, or worse.

O'BIDEN INVOLVEMENT?

As for possible advance planning, consider this:

President Biden siphoned off A-team Secret Service members to provide protection for his wife Jill, who just happened to be “campaigning” for him in Pittsburgh that very day, which led to the brilliant decision to leave Trump with the D-team (as in DEI) leftovers.

According to whistleblowers who later contacted Senator Josh Hawley, many were not even Secret Service but rather DHS agents who “were unfamiliar with the standard protocols typically used at these types of events...”. Anyone smell a rat?

And what stunningly bad optics for Jill's meaningless mini-event for her rapidly deteriorating husband to compete with Trump's rally—unless the optics were about “plausible deniability” rather than campaigning. After all, Biden had to have a reason for robbing Trump of the best Secret Service detail.

Mission accomplished.

But since we know Ol' Joe—who finally dropped out of the presidential race, no doubt over Lady MacBiden's screaming objection—is non compos mentis, we can assume that as much as he hates Trump and the MAGA millions, he wouldn't have been the mastermind who may have concocted such a bold and nefarious plan. That would more likely be the puppeteer manipulating the vacant Biden: Obama himself. Could he have been the key architect of the assassination attempt—the Dems' dream come true—or at least the one to greenlight it, along with the treasonous IC's (US Intelligence Community's) collaboration? Cui bono? Food for thought...

FOLLOW THE MONEY, FOLLOW CNN

In terms of evidence of premeditation and planning, consider this: the day before the rally, July 12th, Austin Private Wealth company allegedly shorted some 15 million shares of Trump's media stock. If true, some insiders would have made a double killing on July 13th—billions in profits had Trump died, as well as ridding themselves of the leader who stands in the way as they attempt to take down America. Now the company claims it was a mere bookkeeping error, off by a multiplier of 10,000. Nothing to see here—mistakes do happen.

And if Ryan Cole is correct, mainstream TV stations livestreamed the rally—which he calls an out-of-the-ordinary, very surprising choice—precisely to capture the assassination in real-time to shock and demoralize the MAGA millions. As Roger Stone also asked, rhetorically, when does CNN cover Trump rallies live? Never. How is it they were on hand for this one—dumb luck?

The coincidences and anomalies are rife, but history tells us the investigation is bound to be pro forma. The FBI, essentially investigating itself, will find what they've already told us: “The FBI is treating the incident as a lone-wolf attack and is investigating it as a possible case of domestic terrorism.” We've heard that song before.

Afterwards, we can expect the files to be classified for the next 50 years as per the JFK playbook—unless we successfully elect Donald Trump, who had damn well better clean out the three letter agencies this time ‘round—as if his life, and our nation’s sovereignty, depends on it!

© 2024 Cherie Zaslowsky – All Rights Reserved

E-Mail Cherie Zaslowsky: cherzz@sbcglobal.net