

The Queer Role in Domestic Terrorism

By Cliff Kincaid

As a long-time media critic, who began my career with Accuracy in Media, I am always disturbed by what President Trump calls the “fake news.” I have seen it over the course of decades. It is why the public has no confidence in the media. But they keep lying, especially when an incident like that in Minneapolis gives them the opportunity to stoke more violence by exploiting the death of a queer woman.

Vice President Vance declared “that woman is part of a broader left-wing network to attack, to dox, to assault, and to make it impossible for our ICE officers to do their job.”

What is fascinating is how various “business” channels and “news” outlets and their presenters echo the far-left sentiments of those like the Party for Socialism and Liberation, which declared, “We condemn the ICE murder of an innocent woman today in Minneapolis and demand the end of ICE terror in all our communities!”

Consider Bloomberg reporter, David E. Rovella, whose article, “ICE kills US citizen,” was distributed by Bloomberg on Wednesday. The Bloomberg article could have been headlined: “ICE Agent Defends His Life in Terror Attack.”

Consider the inflammatory first sentence:

“Less than a mile from where a Minneapolis police officer

murdered George Floyd in 2020, a US immigration agent on Wednesday shot and killed an unarmed 37-year-old woman in her car amid protests over Donald Trump's immigration dragnet."

This deliberately inflammatory sentence was apparently designed to provoke anti-ICE protesters into burning down Minneapolis. Unarmed? In her car? She was driving the car, a deadly weapon in this case.

The communists were prepared when George Floyd died and capitalized on his death to instigate riots, and they are trying to do the same now.

The George Floyd riots that resulted in $500 million worth of damage to Minneapolis were based on a lie, the claim Floyd was murdered, when the evidence showed that the drugs in his system contributed to his death, as he was out of control and resisted arrest.

Interestingly, the LGBTQ "community" has admitted that the anti-ICE woman who tried to ram an ICE agent was a "radical queer woman" who was quickly labeled a "domestic terrorist" because cars have been used in terrorist attacks for years.

The woman, Renee Nicole Good, was shot and killed after she drove her car toward the ICE agent on the street. She was told to "get out" of the vehicle and refused, driving ahead. The ICE agent then tried to get to the side of the vehicle.

"Good was married to a woman and had a 6-year-old son from a previous union," the gay press reports.

"The SUV [Good's car] did move toward the ICE agent as he stood in front of it," the Washington Post admitted. Still, the paper tried to blame the ICE agent, who had been wounded in a previous ICE operation, for what happened.

All of this took place in a matter of seconds.

But it gets worse. Here is the next part of the Bloomberg story:

"The Trump administration alleged that the victim, a US citizen, had endangered the life of the agent, who shot her in the head when she tried to drive away. But as with other shootings by federal immigration agents, video and eyewitness accounts cast doubt on the government's account."

The government account showed the queer woman driving into the ICE agent.

Here's his next distortion:

"The woman was sitting in her car blocking a residential street because of the presence of federal agents, Minneapolis Police Chief Brian O'Hara said. Video shows she attempted to drive away as federal agents sought to open the door to her vehicle."

Drive away? She was driving into a law enforcement officer, and officers were trying to get her to stop so she can be arrested.

A paper, "Vehicle Ramming as a Terrorist Tactic," examines this phenomenon. It declared, "Car-ramming attacks, or vehicular assaults, in which drivers deliberately plow their vehicles into public gatherings, pedestrians, or bicyclists, have become an increasingly common terrorist tactic."

The Combating Terrorism Center at West Point published a paper, "Into the Crowd: The Evolution of Vehicular Attacks and Prevention Efforts."

The abstract from the March 2025 paper notes, “In recent months, there have been a series of vehicular attacks in Germany, the United States, and Israel targeting civilians during celebrations and public gatherings. This is representative of an increase in the use of the tactic. Following the Nice and Berlin attacks in 2016, vehicular ramming terrorist attacks in North America and Europe reached a peak in 2017, before subsiding with the waning of the international terror threat posed by the Islamic State and its supporters.”

As noted, this terror tactic is usually associated with Islamic terrorist groups. This time, the attacker was a queer woman, now portrayed as a “poet.”

The U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS) has released data showing “a more than 1,150% increase in assaults and violence against U.S. Immigration and Customs Enforcement (ICE) law enforcement officers as compared with the same period in 2024 under the Biden administration.”

DHS said, “Over the last 10 months, federal officers and agents across the DHS enterprise have faced a dangerously escalating pattern of violence, ranging from hitting, spitting, kicking and biting during arrests, to vehicle ramming, open gun fire, and the throwing of Molotov cocktails. These nationwide incidents show how ICE officers are being targeted because of the badge they wear, not just the enforcement operations they execute on behalf of the American people.”

On November 18, 2025, DHS said that “vehicle ramming attacks against DHS law enforcement have more than doubled this year,” explaining “There have been nearly 100 vehicular attacks this year, more than double the amount during the same time last year. These attacks not only pose a potentially fatal risk to officers but also endanger the public.”

DHS blamed this on “hateful rhetoric from sanctuary politicians, leftist activists, and the mainstream media.”

Yes, the “mainstream media” are villains as well, even the “business” outlet Bloomberg. Now they are trying to spill more blood.
