

The real reason for a contested convention

In all my years of following America's political process I don't think I've ever seen a time when the front runner in either Party has been attacked so viciously by his own Party. It almost seems insane to try to stop the one person that seems to have the momentum to take back the White House and really make a difference in this nation. After all over the last 25 years the Republicans that have made it to the White House haven't really done anything to help America. George Bush did love America but not enough to close the southern border to stop the invasion of illegals that are nothing but leaches on the American taxpayer. Neither did his dad Bush 41. The last Republican president that tried to do anything about the border was Reagan. He compromised amnesty for border security with a democrat controlled Congress and the Democrats got their amnesty but voted down funding border security. No real surprise there. Now we have a man who will, in all likelihood, secure the border and the republican elite goes ballistic!

Trump is also very good at deal making. Virtually all the trade deals we have with other nations the other nation benefits more than we do. The TTP with stick America with the short end of the stick again. China, Japan, Mexico are all warning us about electing Trump because all of their sweet deals, paid for by the American taxpayer, will be renegotiated to benefit America and that isn't making them happy. The surprising thing is it isn't making the establishment happy either.

Look at the fact that Dwight Eisenhower, George W. Bush, Bill Clinton, and many other Presidents were members of the Council on Foreign Relations. This organization and the Trilateral Commission works with the Bilderbergs to set things in motion for a One World Order. Also keep in mind that as far back as Franklin Delano Roosevelt our Presidents have been chosen not elected. FDR stated "Presidents are selected, not elected." [1] I believe that Dwight Eisenhower was speaking of the 'secret government' that FDR referenced when he stated "In the councils of government, we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by the military-industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists and will persist." [2] Are these the people that are opposing the election of a man that the people seem to want? Are they ignoring that we, as Americans, have the right to elect whom we want or do they simply no longer care about our rights? Are our elections simply an exercise to make us think that we are electing our leaders. Are these 'leaders' actually the chosen ones picked by this shadow government? Is this why Mitt Romney has all of a sudden decided that we need a brokered convention?

If Trump isn't a major threat to the establishment Republicans, and I say in a good way for the American people, then why is there such an uproar over his popularity? What damage can he do to the Republican Party that requires all efforts to derail his campaign? Who is he going to expose and what is he going to expose if he wins the presidency? Who is making millions of these trade deals that the US is on the short end of the deal? Just how good are these deals with China and Japan and Mexico? Why has the US Chamber of Commerce warned Trump to back off of China? [3] Trump's Campaign Senior Policy Advisor Stephen Miller addressed Friday why immigration and trade are key issues in the Republican frontrunner's campaign.

"Well, there is very little right about our trade deals, there is virtually nothing right about our trade deals. We've been getting taken to the cleaners by every country we trade with. We have a trade deficit with almost all of our major trading partners. If you look at, for instance, say Japan, and our car trading deficit, or you look at China, where we have hundreds of billions of dollars in trade deficits, so our entire trade policy needs to be retooled,” Miller told the FOX Business Network’s Maria Bartiromo.[4] What kind of kickbacks are people getting for giving America a raw deal?

Over the last seven and a half years we have seen this administration do everything it can to redistribute the wealth of America. We are the richest nation in the world and most of the world thinks that we owe them something. We owe the world nothing! We’ve saved the world from dictatorships who were trying for world power twice. The world owes us! The wealth of America has aided every national disaster for the last 150 years. What organizations like the Illuminati, Bilderbergs, Council on Foreign Relations and the Trilateral Commission want is a One World Order but the sovereignty of America and the American people won’t let that happen. Trump wants to strengthen that sovereignty and that is what these groups don’t want. Trump could set them back 25-30 years in their goal.

Several organizations have schemed on how to stop trump. Republican governors met in mid February to discuss the ‘Trump problem’; “The scenario Karl Rove outlined was bleak.

Addressing a luncheon of Republican governors and donors in Washington on Feb. 19, he warned that Donald J. Trump’s increasingly likely nomination would be catastrophic, dooming the party in November. But Mr. Rove, the master strategist of George W. Bush’s campaigns, insisted it was not too late for them to stop Mr. Trump, according to three people present.

At a meeting of Republican governors the next morning, Paul R. LePage of Maine called for action. Seated at a long boardroom table at the Willard Hotel, he erupted in frustration over the state of the 2016 race, saying Mr. Trump’s nomination would deeply wound the Republican Party. Mr. LePage urged the governors to draft an open letter “to the people,” disavowing

Mr. Trump and his divisive brand of politics.

The suggestion was not taken up. Since then, Mr. Trump has only gotten stronger, winning two more state contests and collecting the endorsement of Gov. Chris Christie of New Jersey.

In public, there were calls for the party to unite behind a single candidate. In dozens of interviews, elected officials, political strategists and donors described a frantic, last-ditch campaign to block Mr. Trump – and the agonizing reasons that many of them have become convinced it will fail. Behind the scenes, a desperate mission to save the party sputtered and stalled at every turn.”[5] You have to ask the question ‘How will Trump destroy the Republican Party?’ By exposing the corruption in the higher ranks?

There are others out there that are doing all they can to stop Trump. Eric Ericson has used vile vitriol, name calling, super pacs and has even called for a third party to run against trump, which would guarantee a democrat win, just to keep trump from winning: “Two days after Donald Trump won in four of five primaries, efforts to knock the frontrunner from his perch limp forward.

But the impact of the money and time spent knocking Trump are coming into question after the real estate mogul surged ahead of Ted Cruz by more than 250 delegates.

Katie Packer, a Republican strategist who founded Our Principles PAC to hinder Trump’s success, said she is evaluating the path forward.

“We’re having conversations with donors, gauging the interest in moving ahead,” Packer told NBC News.

A group of conservatives led by Erick Erickson, editor of Red State, met Thursday and pledged to continue their efforts to prevent Trump from winning the nomination. A signed statement by attendees said they call “for a unity ticket that unites the Republican Party.” That unity ticket would preferably include Sen. Ted Cruz, who is second behind Trump in the delegate count, and a presidential contender who dropped out already. But the group did not discount including someone not in the race like Paul Ryan or Mitt Romney.

If a unity ticket fails to garner a majority of the delegates in the primary process, the group agrees, “We encourage all former Republican candidates not currently supporting Trump to unite against him and encourage all candidates to hold their delegates on the first ballot.”

“Lastly, we intend to keep our options open as to other avenues to oppose Donald Trump,” the statement said, providing no other details on what those other options might be.”[6]

With all this opposition against Trump who only wants to Make America Great Again, we have to realize that the corruption in DC is massive and if exposed will bring a lot of people down. Who are these people? Go here to see who are members of the CFR, an organization that is bent on One World dominance.

Some of the names may shock you, some may not. There are politicians, actors, actresses, military, and members of both parties. I’ve always said that our political system is nothing more than a two headed snake. When you look at the names you see why I say that. It’s time to kill that snake!
