

The Renegotiation Of NAFTA And The Deceit Therein

The Lies About NAFTA

The discussion of the trade agreement, known as NAFTA rarely if at all, ever mentions some of the most dangerous elements of its provisions.

What we hear is whether it is good for American jobs, business, or balance of trade among Canada, Mexico, and the United States. These issues are important, but they pale in comparison to the implications for the independence and freedom of the American people – this is the crucial aspect of NAFTA that is being purposely ignored, and hidden from the public.

Hiding the truth is to be expected when considering the history of all the “free trade” tactics back to the 50s. It was always about trade – nothing else. The prospect of the loss of sovereignty and the freedom of the citizens was never allowed to enter into the dialogue. The discussion was always centered on trade and how marvelous it was going to be for everyone.

NAFTA was introduced and promoted back in the 90s, and we were sold a bill of goods that we’d have enormous prosperity with jobs of all kinds. There would be so many jobs, we would be hard pressed to fill them.

The purpose of this strategy was to keep the American people so enamored with the prospect of all the inherent goodies which would flow into the deal that they wouldn’t look any deeper into the trade agreement.

This strategy is standard Modus Operandi in the globalists’ bag of tricks. They resort to the same tactics every time, tactics and lies which will suck the people into accepting and promoting issues which will later prove to be very disastrous, but it will have advanced the globalists' agenda. Here are the tragic real figures from three years ago.

Get Us Out

A case in point is NAFTA. According to the article, "DON'T RENEGOTIATE NAFTA: GET US OUT!," published in the New American Magazine, June 26, 2017 by Charles Scaliger,

On New Year's Day 1994, the North American Free Trade Agreement (NAFTA) came into being. Despite the enthusiastic backing of then-President Clinton, congressional Democrats, and a large majority of Beltway Republicans, the massive new trade deal and the international bloc that it created were controversial everywhere but inside the Beltway."

There was a lot of suspicion in the public mind at the time, but the beltway crowd was just going to have their way – come hell or high-water. However, it would not have passed the Senate without support from the Republican Leadership, along with some Senate Republican members who were influenced by the leadership.

This fact supports the contention that the Republican Party, the leadership especially, has served as a back-up to the Democrats in steering the country toward the fruition of the globalist agenda. There are very few exceptions.

The article continues:

As discerning observers pointed out almost a quarter-century ago, although NAFTA was being sold to the American public as a "free trade" deal, it was in fact anything but. Its beguiling name notwithstanding, NAFTA was and remains, a "managed trade" deal, an instrument of international socialism setting up a vast new array of international bureaucracies to manage the flow of goods across the borders of Canada, Mexico, and the United States.

Included in the deal from the very get-go, for example, was a sweeping set of environmental objectives and rules in a little-noticed side agreement, the North American Agreement on Environmental Cooperation, whose enforcement arm is the Commission for Environmental Cooperation, headquartered in Montreal, whose mission is to receive and adjudicate notices of alleged environmental violations by any of the three North American countries.

Here we begin to see where all this was headed. But if anyone was surprised they shouldn't have been, for this is the way the "free trade" proponents have operated from the very outset.

When I was a lot younger I was involved in the hobby of trapping wild hogs. In order for me to have any success I had to first scout out and reconnoiter the area within where I was going to set up my operation. Then I would build a trap-pen in a strategic location. Next came the main thing – the bait, without the bait I knew I wasn't going to trap anything, and that's the way it goes with the forces behind all this "free trade" that has been going on since about 1950. They must have the bait to start the process. And in this case the bait was trade. But trade isn't what the movers and shakers have on their mind. It's something else entirely.

From the article, Don't Renegotiate

NAFTA has failed to deliver on the airy-fairy promises of its creators, at least from the point of view of its most important sponsors, American taxpayers. And despite its dismal track record, the organization is in no imminent danger of collapse, now that President Trump has decided, after months of anti-NAFTA campaign bluster, to renegotiate rather than withdraw from the organization.

Trump's top priority, as with most of his foreign policy priorities, is to get a better deal for the United States. But extracting better trade terms from our two North American neighbors has virtually nothing to do with the long-term objectives of NAFTA. Not only is NAFTA not a “free-trade” agreement, its underlying purpose is not trade at all. Like the former European Common Market – which was transformed into the European Community and finally into the modern European Union, a full-fledged continental government, NAFTA was designed with much more ambitious aims in mind than making the world safer for imported avocados and Canadian softwood.

President Trump, by deciding to stick with and further legitimize NAFTA, has – wittingly or unwittingly – greatly improved the prospects for NAFTA to someday be transformed into the North American Union.

Mr. President, Tell Me This

Why would you choose to stay in this traitorous organization, after so bitterly denouncing it while campaigning for the office of President? Could it be that you just don't know about NAFTA and its goals? Are you completely at a loss to understand that the goals and objectives of the Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) have and always will be bringing to fruition the globalists' agenda for total world government?

The part of the plan that NAFTA is to play involves using the agreement to gradually and incrementally combine all of North America and South America into one regional government. When all the separate nations are completely and successfully combined into the regional government of the area, they will all be one global entity.

Mr. President, we must not let this happen on our watch. Please remember your promises to the people who supported you. Mr. President, stay true to those who got you there. To hell with those who have opposed you from the beginning and are trying to make you think they have been in your camp all along. Your supporters been waiting for an opportunity to work with you in Making America Great Again.

Please think about this, Mr. President. Psalm 33:12 says this, "Blessed is the nation whose God is the LORD; and the people whom he hath chosen for his own inheritance." The antithesis of this holy verse is "Damned is the nation whose God is not the Lord."

In my previous article, "What Next Mr. President – Part 2," I pointed out a few instances where you were being advised by the wrong people, especially with regard some of your appointments. I am sending you a copy of the article and a copy of a comment on same by Mr. Harold Pease. In it he contends that your association with Richard Haass of the CFR, and others he considered in the same category, equated you with being in the establishment. I believe, and hope and pray that he has reached the wrong conclusion. However, what he presents has to be considered, and I am glad he took the time to share his thoughts with me on this matter. It will help me in my future efforts to expose the CFR and their goals.

President Trump, I hope you will seriously consider this comment by Mr. Pease since there could be many others in our country who are also looking at the connections of some of the people which you have in your administration.

My Dad was something of a barnyard philosopher, and when he would admonish me regarding those I associated with, he said something like this, "When you lie down with dogs, you'll get up with fleas." In my 90 years of observing things, I have found this to be so true. Additionally, I have discovered an immutable law which holds that all choices result in consequences like unto the choices. So, we must be careful of our choices.

To sum it up, you have done an amazing amount of good. As I stated in a previous article, you have accomplished more for the American people than any President since Calvin Coolidge.

Yet, you have only scraped the surface of what needs to be done. The Left, the Globalists, the Conspirators for world government, are going to do whatever they possibly can to stop you and ultimately to destroy you in the process. They know that if you are even half-way successful in bringing your agenda to fruition, it would set them back a good half century.

Mr. President, while you were campaigning for the presidency, you stated many times to different crowds how bad, how disastrous NAFTA was to individuals, business and states. Now you are saying you may keep NAFTA, depending on whether we can negotiate a better deal for America, economically speaking. But that's not the worst part of it! The worst part is what it will do to our sovereignty, our individual rights, and in addition, how our laws will have to be changed to coincide with those of the other countries. We're not just talking about Canada and Mexico, but all of the countries of both North and South America, and finally Sir, all the countries of the entire world. This is the goal, the very objective of the New World Order, i.e., Novus Ordo Seclorum, but none of this is being brought to light. It's just the same old song – nothing but “trade” – everything is all about “trade.”

The bait is the same, just as it was in the promotion of the TPP. Nothing was ever said about open borders and unlimited immigration. There was a provision that stated that there were other provisions that would not be disclosed for at least four years after it was ratified had gone into effect. As well, other provisions could be added in the future as needed.

Mr. President, those making up the forces behind this horrid trade deal, a deal that literally sucked the jobs out of our country, they are a bunch of reprobates who have been turned over to this mind-set by God. This makes them anti-God as well as everything He favors. So why should you be influenced by them?

I'm asking you, Mr. President – DO NOT RENEGOTIATE NAFTA – GET US OUT OF IT ALTOGETHER.
