

Trump endorsed by National black pro-life union president

If one believes the people presidential hopeful Donald Trump calls the sleazy media, African Americans and Latinos are not about to cast their votes for the Republican maverick. However, many believe the polls being used to document opinions of minorities are false, miscalculated or just plain phony.

For example, Day Gardner, the president of the National Black Pro-Life Union, who has been involved in the pro-life movement for more than 15 years told reporters that this was the very first time she felt moved to endorse a presidential candidate. And that candidate is Donald Trump.

"I, like all of America have been watching with amazement this spectacle unfold," she said, describing Trump's whirlwind campaign against 16 other Republican candidates and now against the Democratic Party's – and news media's – favorite politician Hillary Clinton.

"I was amazed and for a while baffled at the way in which the GOP and establishment conservatives started bashing and trashing Donald J. Trump, a man who has been leading in the polls from the very beginning and has millions and millions of staunch supporters. Why would they do that? The answer came back to me that it was fear of the unknown and of the untried," said Ms. Gardner.

Many believe the GOP elite and establishment conservatives also fear that with President Trump they won't be able to cast their lines into ponds of their choosing. They also fear that they won't be able reel that line in whenever they want to.

The NPPU believes that with Trump, the elitists don't even have a fishing pole!

"We the people are the pole and the line is attached from him directly to us. What a concept," said Ms. Gardner.

She stated that America is in deep trouble, but we the people have come to an impasse.

Americans are expected to sit back and do the same old thing, the same old way, by voting for the same old establishment politicians. They smile in the faces of voters while patting each other on the back for successfully tricking them one more time – one more political season.

"Make no mistake I believe without Trump, Hillary Clinton will win," Gardner solemnly warns Republicans, Independents and those people once called Reagan Democrats.

"Without President Trump, we will be stuck with the status quo. Life will go on with fewer and fewer good jobs because the biggest job producers and providers will move to other countries. Without jobs crime will continue to billow especially in cities with impoverished neighborhoods," the pro-life activist noted.

"Our National debt will continue to grow to oblivion just as it has been.

Millions more illegal aliens will pour across our borders expecting and getting shelter, education and healthcare – while many American citizens not only struggle for those very same things but many times – and maybe even most times do without," she warned.

She also pointed to a true danger to the nation's legal system. "Without Trump, we will end up with the most liberal Supreme Court in our Nation's history."

Without Trump – and with Hillary Clinton or Bernie Sanders – the same old establishment politicians will continue to be overly nice and kowtow to foreign countries that not only hate us, but seek to destroy everything America stands for. Clinton and Sanders and many other leftists don't want to build a strong nation, they want to create a socialist "paradise" such as Venezuela, which is undergoing one of the worst economic slumps in that country's history thanks to more than a decade of Marxist policies and destruction of that South American nation's middle-class.

Venezuela also has become one of the world's most dangerous places to live in, competing with war-torn Iraq, Syria and Libya for record homicides.

Besides Venezuela and other Latin American nations, Europe is nothing to brag about either. "Without Trump, we will be facing the same problems that Germany, Brussels, Hungary and other host countries are forced to deal with because establishment politicians are afraid to stand up to our enemies in the Middle East," said Ms. Gardner.

Gardner, a former Miss Delaware and a semifinalist for Miss America, previously served as the National Director of Black Americans for Life. She also serves now as Associate Director of the National Pro Life Center in Washington, D.C., and as an executive member of the National Clergy Council.

In a statement sent to newspapers, radio and television news outlets and Internet news media editors, Ms. Gardner made her persuasive argument:

"Without Trump, life will be business as usual – and we will continue to spiral down into an abyss from which we will never recover. Our America will be even more unrecognizable: America the disrespected, America the downtrodden, America the aborted, America the perverted...America the ugly.

"With Donald J. Trump as President we can make America great again. We need to stand with him, to forgo the onslaught of political correctness that spawns a populace of cowards and liars.

“Donald Trump loves America and has the courage to say what needs to be said about radical Islam. He also has the courage to follow through with policies to protect America. We must not – compromise our morals, our values or our beliefs in order to be liked by others.

“Mr. Trump is an extremely successful businessman who will bring decades of real experience to the presidency. Donald J. Trump is also a powerful voice for each and every one of us. He hears the small quiet voices of our veterans and everyday people, he hears the voices of unborn children, he hears your voice, he hears my voice- and I, along with millions and millions of other Americans – now hear his.

“Today, I firmly stand with Donald J. Trump to endorse him to be the next President of the United States of America.”
