

What Happened To America's Education?, Part 2

What is happening in our schools is a disgrace to the history of American education. We've gone from putting kids into college at the age of sixteen to not having any child able to read at grade level or do math at grade level in entire cities. Do note that these cities, Chicago and Boston, and deep blue cities and have been for decades. The school boards have decided that your kids are no longer your kids but somehow became wards of the state and whatever the schools teach those kids is flat-out none of your business. In Virginia, school administrators refused to talk to parents upset by pornographic and sexually explicit material in public school libraries! Then-governor Terry McAuliffe stated in response, "I don't think parents should be telling schools what they should teach." This cost him the governor's mansion.

In Wisconsin, the Eau Claire Area School District was recently sued in federal court by parents objecting to school policies that promote students' gender transitioning without the notification or involvement of their parents! Shockingly, the district's official Gender Support Plan states: "Remember, parents are not entitled to know their kid's identities. That knowledge must be earned . . . we must not act as stand-ins for oppressive ideas/behaviors/attitudes, even and especially if that oppression is coming from parents." [1]

Since when are the parents NOT entitled to know something about their child? The National Education System has moved to the point where it feels it has the right to indoctrinate our children any way it wants and parents have no say in the matter. This is why teachers' unions oppose school choice. Like all government agencies, they do not like competition. Homeschooled children get a much better and more thorough education than any child in a public school. Grade averages are much higher in homeschooled children than those 'educated' in a public school. Are all public school and their teachers bad? No, but they are very restricted as to what they can teach. I wrote a book on America's founding titled Defining America's Exceptionalism and have been told by public school teachers that they would be arrested for using that book in a public school. Too much religion! Well, if that is what our history is made up of, then why can't it be taught?

When the school system is permeated with the mindset "I don't think parents should be telling schools what they should teach." as Governor McAuliffe stated then what your child is being taught is probably not in the best interest of the student or society in general but will only benefit the political elite. This is a trend that has begun to show and probably has been there for a long time but was well hidden. It seems that the left is not hiding what they are doing anymore at all. It is all out in the open and they do not seem to care if we all know it.

The one thing that parents have complained about over the last couple of years is the schools' demand to expose our kids to the perversion of homosexuality. I find it ironic that if you talk to a co-worker about sex, they consider that sexual harassment but doing the same thing to an elementary student is essential. This month is so-called pride month. What is to be proud about not being able to discern the proper gender of a sexual partner? Our public schools seem to think they have the right to shove this garbage down the throats of our kids. Some schools went overboard in their efforts to embrace alternative lifestyles before children – a celebration that helps explain how gender dysphoria has become a contagion, with willing participants being warmly embraced and granted special status among their peers.

In a photo shared by Libs of TikTok, there appears to be a drag queen (center) being featured at an elementary school, this being a common ploy these days to slowly introduce children to sexually inappropriate behavior.

Young minds don't stand a chance against politically-motivated adults driven to shape children's views on a world of their making – these being the same people who take offense to those who suggest they are grooming these children for future exploitation. [2] When I was in school if teachers did anything remotely like this they would be in jail and it should be that way today. People who demand that young children need to be exposed to this type of sexual perversion are groomers and should never be allowed to be around children.

What we are beginning to see now is teachers of elementary and middle school children that have OnlyFans accounts and are filming their porn in the classrooms they teach in! A teacher at Thunderbolt Middle School is reportedly caught in a scandal – one that's horrifying both parents and students.

“That was my friend's daughter's desk. And she is mortified over the situation like, ‘that is my desk.’ She has no care knowing students have seen her everything and on students' desks,” said Thunderbolt mom, Kristina Minor.

The teacher has an online account where students found her pornographic content, which appears to be filmed in her 8th-grade classroom. “She was sharing these links to her sex site on her social media accounts, which are public, which children follow her,” said Minor.

Lake Havasu Unified School District said in a statement, “It has come to our attention that students have been airdropping explicit material. The images did not happen during the school day and the person depicted no longer works for LHUSD. Please remove all images from your child’s phone and talk with them about the appropriate use of technology.”

No criminal charges were filed against the individuals involved in making the sex tape, leaving parents disgusted and outraged.

Hobbs vetoed the bill banning porn shoots in classrooms and government buildings, calling it a “poor measure to address those concerns.” She also claimed, “it serves as little more than a thinly veiled effort to ban books.” [3]

I have advocated for the last couple of decades for the schools to be put back in the hands of the states and the parents. Our Department of Education is unconstitutional and the teachers’ unions are as corrupt as the rest of our federal government and it must be stopped if we expect to have any chance of restoring our education system to what education is supposed to be.
