

Who's Afraid of Bloomberg?

By Lee Duigon

August 24, 2023

Now that he walks the earth, seeking whom he might devour, I'm more afraid of zillionaire Michael Bloomberg than I ever was before.

Bloomberg had twelve years as mayor of New York City, running as a Republican (LOL) because the Dems didn't want to make room on their slate for an outsider. By comparison with the Democrats who came after him, Bloomberg is the Father of His Country.

Standing alone, he's a bully who wants to ban everything.

I know, I know—who's afraid of Michael Bloomberg? When he ran for president a few years ago, he spent three-quarters of a billion (!) dollars and all he had to show for it was three delegates from Guam. But I can't forget that as mayor he displayed flashes of competence and badly-needed leadership. So I view Bloomberg mischief as dangerous mischief.

Currently he's put together some kind of "climate group" whose aim is to ban meat, dairy, and private ownership of cars by 2030. Supposedly he's got 14 major U.S. cities—all of them run by Democrats—already signed up for this, with another hundred cities world-wide.

What the hell? Once upon a time Americans fought a war against the greatest power in the earth, the British Empire—and all King George wanted was a stamp tax! Enormous, painful sacrifices had to be made to secure our liberty.

And now some puffball of a Bloomberg's going to come along and tell us we can't eat meat anymore? Or dairy products? And we can't own a car? Yes, there's that "pro-choice" mob once again trying to erase our choices. King George was mad, they say; but he never came within a country mile of this kind of lunacy.

Where does anyone in any branch of government get the authority to tell us that we can't eat meat? Oh, no problem! It's a "global climate emergency," see—and such luxuries as our basic civil liberties will just have to be indefinitely suspended. All it'll take is a few more Mandates. Actual legislation is so time-consuming, so messy! Mandates, that's what we need.

Go ahead, tell me you don't see another Pandemic coming down the pike, just in time to screw up the 2024 election. Mail-in ballots, drop boxes, crates full of Democrat votes brought in after the polls close for the day—they've got that down to a science. And for good measure, we'll have lockdowns, masks, social distancing, and shortages galore. It worked in 2020, it'll work again in 2024.

We hope and pray that Bloomberg's inborn arrogance and heavy-handedness will scuttle his scheme, even as his presidential run came up snake-eyes. But he's not alone. Our Blue cities are chock-full of Bloomberg clones at every level of administration, all of them lusting for power over us defenseless plebs.

Self-government? That's a laugh. We can't even be trusted to eat our vegetables. Besides, they're champing at the bit to force us to eat bugs—and maybe a bit of tree-bark for dessert. And no cars, so you won't be able to pack up and leave.

What can we do? Donald Trump's the only big-name politician on our side, and you see what they're trying to do to him. We need a massive clean-up of our government—a government that's turned against us in so many ways. (Liberals like it!)

Can they do it to us again—that whole Pandemic caper? Can they really, truly, do it again?

Pray hard. This coming election is for all the marbles. The survival of our republic is at stake.

I have discussed these and other topics throughout the week on my blog, <http://leeduigon.com/> . Click the link and drop in for a visit, before Bloomberg shuts us down. My articles can also be found at www.chalcedon.edu/ .

© 2023 Lee Duigon – All Rights Reserved

E-Mail Lee Duigon: leeduigon@verizon.net