

Why Democrats Are Crying Wolf

Roger Anghis

From the night Donald Trump won the election in 2016 the Democrats have been doing all they can to remove him from office. None of their attempts have been legitimate. All have been a pie in the sky effort, and all have backfired so badly that the only information that came forth was the massive corruption of the Democrat Party.

Mad Maxine Waters has been shouting impeach 45 from the day after the election. She is supposedly a college-educated person, but she was so butt-hurt that she wasn't aware that you can't impeach someone who hasn't take the office yet. All the schemes the Democrats have pulled reminds me of the little boy that cried wolf. They have tried to get the American people behind their idiotic plans to remove Trump every time their last scheme failed. They tried to get the Electoral College to vote for Hillary or someone else to keep Trump from getting the 270 votes needed: . . . in hopes GOP electors will join them to keep the president-elect under the 270 votes he'll need to enter the White House.

The Democrats are trying to persuade Republicans to ignore their oaths and ditch Trump, who is expected to end up with 307 electoral votes, according to Politico.

The electors meet Dec. 19.

The dissenting Democrats would have to persuade 37 Republican electors to defect. At that point, the final decision on the presidency would go to the GOP-controlled House of Representatives. [1]

When that didn't work, they rioted in the streets, burned cars, broke out store windows and did other things in hopes that their violent actions would change the results of the election. When it didn't, they began to push a made-up story that was even unverified by the author of the story, The Steel Dossier. Well, we all know how that turned out. Zilch. The Mueller Report was a big bust. Mueller's testimony before Congress was even a bigger dud. MuellerDay is over, and the assessments continue to roll in. One common theme in coverage is that if Democrats were hoping Robert Mueller's testimony would create a big push for impeachment, they were off the mark. Politico reports that in a closed-door meeting of the Democratic caucus after the Mueller hearings, Nancy Pelosi squelched a push from House Judiciary chief Jerry Nadler to launch the proceedings against President Trump. Instead, Democrats will stay the current course of letting committee investigations and court proceedings play out. In fact, Mueller's testimony before two House panels "was a disappointment to many Democrats," per Politico.[2]

Then the Democrats started pushing the false narrative that we were headed for a massive recession. That lasted about two weeks when even their own economists denied that there was a recession on the horizon. Then came the Phone Call. Democrats were ecstatic. They now had the grounds for impeachment, they thought. Pelosi announced the day before Trump release the transcript of the call that the House was instigating an impeachment inquiry. Trump released the transcript and all their hopes were bashed, again. First off, the whistleblower did not have firsthand information and it turned out that the rules were changed in August of this year just before the report was filed. The Whistleblower Protection Act rules were changed in the months prior to a whistleblower coming forward against President Donald Trump.

The rules used to state that a whistleblower had to have direct, firsthand knowledge of what they were reporting on.[3] Then Schiff lied about not meeting with the whistleblower when in truth he helped guide him through the process. This is flat-out false. Unlike the quick two-step dance he performed with Anderson Cooper, Schiff simply says the committee had not spoken to the whistleblower. Now we know that's not true.

“Regarding Chairman Schiff’s comments on ‘Morning Joe,’ in the context, he intended to answer the question of whether the Committee had heard testimony from the whistleblower, which they had not,” a committee spokesman told The Fact Checker. “As he said in his answer, the whistleblower was then awaiting instructions from the Acting DNI as to how the whistleblower could contact the Committee. Nonetheless, he acknowledges that his statement should have been more carefully phrased to make that distinction clear.” [4]

We have to wonder just why the election of Trump has brought the Democrats to such a state of despair. This is simple to explain. They have been working since Reagan to slowly usurp or Constitution and gain complete control of the American people, businesses, economy, environment, healthcare, and energy. Trump has ruined it all! We’ve gone from being dependent on foreign oil to being the world’s largest producer of oil. Our military, which Obama did his best to destroy, is now the feared military force it should be. Trump has redone many of the trade deals that always put America on the short end of the stick and we are now the ones that benefit the most, as we should. Trump has gotten us out of the Paris Climate Accord which placed the majority of the cost on the American taxpayer. He redid NAFTA, one of the worst deals we have ever done. He’s cut back the funding to the UN and has forced other countries to pay more.

The bottom line, Trump has placed America and Americans first. Democrats put illegals first. New York Assembly Democrats on Tuesday blocked a bill that proposed expanding college tuition aid for children of deceased and disabled military veterans after- having a week earlier- approved a state budget that set aside $27 million in college tuition aid for illegal immigrants.

The Assembly's Higher Education Committee voted 15 to 11 on Tuesday to shelve the bill, effectively quashing its chances of going to the floor, the Post-Standard reported.

The decision came after committee chair Deborah Glick, D-Manhattan, and Speaker Carl Heastie said $27 million from the state's budget would go towards supporting the Jose Peralta New York State DREAM Act, which allows illegal immigrants to qualify for state aid for higher education, Newsweek reported.

[5] Just how cold can you be to spit in the face of the families of fallen vets but embrace the illegals that thumb their nose at our laws?

How many more times will the Democrats cry wolf between now and November 2020? Representative Al Greene said it as plain as anyone can: "I'm concerned if we don't impeach this president, he will get re-elected. If we don't impeach him, he will say he's been vindicated. He will say the Democrats had an overwhelming majority in the House and didn't take up impeachment. He will say we had a constitutional duty to do and we didn't. He will say he's been vindicated." [6] He knows the Democrats don't have an answer for Trump's economy, his trade abilities, his employment figures, his energy policies. He knows that another four years of Trump and it will take the Democrats thirty years to regain the ground they will have lost. What most Democrats are afraid of is the corruption he is exposing. Hillary stated during the campaign that she could be in big trouble if Trump wins: You really had to see this to believe it. She came apart – literally unglued. She is the most foul-mouthed woman I've ever heard. And that voice at screech level – awful!

She screamed she'd get that fing Lauer fired for this. Referring to Donald Trump, Clinton said, 'If that fing bastard wins, we all hang from nooses! Lauer's finished, and if I lose, it's all on your heads for screwing this up.'[7]

The Democrat Party's corruption is massive and encompasses the FBI, CIA, NSA, and DOJ just to name a few of the alphabet agencies. Mostly the top tier of these organizations, not the rank and file. Expect the cry of wolf for the next five years. This 'witch hunt' they are pursuing for impeachment reminds me of the Old Testament story of Haman in the book of Ester. He built gallows to hang Mordecai on but God turned it around and Haman and his entire family was hung on those gallows instead. The Democrats think they will take Trump down but God is using their investigations to expose their corruption and they will hang instead of Trump. God will not be mocked. What you sow, you reap.
